CALCUTTA, the 23rd March 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 19TH OF MARCH 1886.

AT the close of the previous week, after a few days of unsettled weather, which had given general rain to the whole of the province, the rainfall boing heavy in the western and southern districts, and comparatively light in the eastern and northern districts, the meteorological conditions over Bengal became more settled, winds shifted to westerly, and in many cases north-westerly, skies cleared rapidly, while humidity decreased, though at the same time temperature commenced to increase at most stations. These conditions have continued almost throughout the present week, though the northerly element in the wind directions has been in many cases gradually replaced by a southerly element, particularly at the southern stations, where the advent of the southerly winds has been attended by an increase in the amount of humidity. With these conditions weather has continued fine during the whole week over the province, and not a single shower of rain has been reported: temperature has generally steadily increased, and with the increasing temperature pressure has fallen slowly: cloud proportion has been low and humidity has been moderate in amount.

Pressure—Which was, during the previous week, no less than 0·085″ in excess of the normal, has, as stated previously, generally slowly decreased during the present week, and the mean excess above normal temperature has been reduced to 0·043″. This excess is a little irregularly distributed, and varies from 0·011″ at Chittagong to 0·068″ at Purneah.

Temperature—During the previous week was 3·4° below the normal for the period; but with the steadily increasing temperature during the present week, this defect is gradually disappearing, and the mean defect for the province is now only 1·8°; while in North Behar temperature is even slightly higher than the normal. Some rather high maximum temperatures have been reported during the week, and thus, on the 18th, Cuttack reported 96·4° while Midnapore registered 96·3°, and on the 19th also Bogra registered 96·5°, Comilla 96·3°, and Dacca 96·2°.

Rainfall—As has been previously stated, has been entirely absent throughout the week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 19th of March 1886:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "4..." [illegible]

COLONIAL EMIGRATION FORM No. 22.

FORM OF CERTIFICATE OF FINAL MEDICAL EXAMINATION OF EMIGRANTS.

Statement of results of Medical Examination of Emigrants to be embarked in ship.

ON this the   day of   188   I identified in depôt the emigrants intended to be embarked for   ; and found them to answer to their descriptive particulars in the embarkation nominal roll (list). I examined each individual emigrant in respect of his or her fitness in point of health to undertake the voyage; and I am satisfied that they are, with the exceptions noted below, fully capable of making the sea voyage safely, and without endangering the health of others.

MEDICAL INSPECTOR'S ENDORSEMENT.

THE emigrants referred to in the above statement were examined by me at the embarkation wharf, and I am of opinion that they are fit to proceed, excepting those bearing the numbers noted below who have been exchanged for other emigrants brought from the depôt. As regards the exceptions taken by the Surgeon Superintendent, I have carefully examined the persons to whom they refer and consider them "fit" or "unfit" as entered against the numbers. Those unfit have been exchanged for others: and I am of opinion that every emigrant who has been substituted and entered in the nominal roll (list) accordingly can safely be allowed to proceed to the colony—

CHAPTER IV.

TRANSPORT ARRANGEMENTS.

SECTION I.—General Rules.

Joint responsibility of Protector and Medical Inspector.

85. The Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall be jointly responsible with the Protector of Emigrants for the suitability of the general fittings and hospital arrangements of emigrant ships; for the quality and sufficiency of the provisions and medical stores shipped for the voyage; and for the fitness for duty, in point of health, of the ship's officers and crew. He shall also be present with the Protector at the surveys of emigrant ships, and at the embarkation of emigrants; and he shall see that everything is done to secure the comfort of the emigrant passengers, and to render the occurrence of disease among them improbable.

Appointment of diplomaed Surgeon.

86. Unless the Surgeon Superintendent shall have been nominated by the Crown Agents, or by the Colonial Government, the Emigration Agent shall appoint a Medical Officer, in all respects fully qualified, to be Surgeon Superintendent. Every such appointment shall be made subject to the approval of the Protector and Medical Inspector, which shall not be given unless the officer appointed (a) holds a medical diploma of some recognised college or (b) has previously to the publication of these rules sailed in medical charge of Emigrants to the Colonies under Act VII of 1871.

Registration of Surgeon's qualifications.

87. Every Medical Officer, on receiving from the Agent his appointment as Surgeon Superintendent, shall call at the Protector's office for the purpose of having his papers examined; and, if his nomination be approved, registered for future reference.

Attendance of Surgeon for embarkation duties.

88. Every Surgeon Superintendent appointed to an emigrant vessel shall be present throughout her preparation for the voyage. If residing on shore, he shall send all his heavy baggage on board not later than the evening of the day preceding that fixed for embarkation with a view to being free on the day of embarkation to attend at the depôt and wharf for the uninterrupted discharge of the several duties devolving on him in connection with the embarkation of emigrants. On the day of embarkation he shall attend at the wharf at least one hour before the time fixed for the embarkation.

Appointment of compounders.

89. A properly qualified compounder, or a properly qualified native doctor engaging to perform the duties of a compounder, shall, subject to the approval of the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants be appointed by the Agent to every vessel chartered for the conveyance of emigrants and shall call at the Protector's Office for registration of his name and necessary particulars Should the number of emigrants to be carried exceed 500, or should other exceptional circumstances render it absolutely necessary in the opinion of the Medical Inspector to appoint a second compounder, such compounder shall be appointed accordingly. Every compounder shall be qualified to act as interpreter. For the purposes of this rule two children under ten years of age shall be reckoned as one emigrant.

Attendance of compounders for embarkation duties.

90. Every compounder appointed to an emigrant vessel shall take his effects on board on the evening of the day previous to that fixed for embarkation; shall attend at the depôt and wharf throughout the day of embarkation, and shall render to the Emigration Agent and Surgeon Superintendent such assistance as they may need in arranging for the embarkation.

Appointment of store-keeper.

91. A store-keeper, who shall be fully qualified to keep a correct account in English of the issue of stores, shall be appointed by the Master, with the approval of the Protector of Emigrants, and shall be placed on the ship's articles. Such store-keeper may be the third officer of the ship.

Appointment of attendants.

92. The Agent shall appoint to every vessel chartered for the conveyance of emigrants the staff of attendants prescribed in scale No. 5 of schedule G. Such attendants shall, whenever practicable, be selected from among those accustomed to a sea-life, and previously trained, either in depôt or elsewhere to the kind of work to be performed on board.

Appointment of emigrants as attendants.

93. Emigrants, who volunteer for the work, may be appointed by the Emigration Agent as cooks, nurses, and topazes. One of the nurses, best fitted for the work of supervising and directing the other nurses, shall be appointed head nurse.

Agreements of native attendants.

94. Separate agreements in duplicate shall be entered into with the compounders, nurses and other attendants; and shall, in the cases of natives of India, provide for a free return passage to that country; and in those of West Indians or Africans, for a free passage to their homes.

Disposal of duplicate agreements.

95. The duplicate copy of such agreements executed as above shall, after the departure of the vessel, be forwarded by the Emigration Agent to the office of the Protector for submission to Government.

Control of attendants.

96. The attendants on emigrants shall during the voyage be under the immediate control of the Surgeon Superintendent, who shall be at liberty to disrate or dismiss any of them for misconduct or neglect of duty, and to appoint others in their stead or add to their number in case of emergency or necessity.

Services of compounder and store-keeper.

97. The services of the compounder and store-keeper shall be entirely at the disposal of the Surgeon Superintendent. It shall be their duty to assist that officer in maintaining discipline among the emigrants; to see that all instructions are fully carried out; to report to him any irregularities and cases of sudden sickness; to help in issuing rations and water, and in distributing the meals; and to supervise generally, under the orders of the Surgeon Superintendent, all matters affecting the welfare of the emigrant passengers.

Prohibition of objectionable cargo and animals.

98. No pigs, dogs or ferocious or dangerous animals shall be allowed on board, nor shall any of the articles specified in schedule E be carried as cargo on board an emigrant vessel.

Section II.—Emigrant Vessels.

Chartering of vessels.

99. When a vessel is to be chartered in India for the conveyance of emigrants, the Agent concerned shall avoid engaging (a) any vessel that is not classed as provided in schedule A appended to the rules; and (b), if practicable, any vessel that has carried a salt cargo on her previous voyage.

Inshore mooring of emigrant vessel.

100. With a view to facilitate visits of emigration officers to an emigrant vessel, lying off Calcutta, for the purposes of survey and inspection, the master of such vessel shall, as early as possible, arrange with the Port authorities to have her moored in an inshore berth, if such a berth is available.

Application for license.

101. As soon as a vessel is chartered, the Emigration Agent shall forward to the Protector a certified copy of the charter-party, with a request for her survey, and shall direct the master to apply to the local Government, through the office of the Protector, for the requisite license to carry emigrants.

Information from Master with application.

102. The master shall personally submit his application for a license in form No. 23: and shall therein furnish information as to—

(a) the number of emigrants which he believes his vessel to be capable of carrying under sections 57 and 58 of the Act;

(b) the ship's classification;

(c) the ship's tonnage;

I, the undersigned Marine Surveyor, by direction of the Protector of Emigrants, having personally made, during visits to the abovenamed ship, a careful survey and examination of her hull, machinery, and each of her equipments, fittings and appurtenances declare as follows:—

(1) That the hull of the said ship; the water-tight tunnel enclosing the propeller shafts; the water-tight doors and stuffing boxes connected with the said tunnel and shaft, the boilers and machinery; the safety valves; all other fittings and appurtenances; and the fire extinguishing appliances on board are sufficient for the service intended, and in good condition.

(2) That the weight that has been placed on the safety valves does not exceed the pressure per square inch in lbs. stated in the above column (d) Machinery, being the maximum pressure allowable.

(3) That the boats, life-buoys, lights, compasses, means of making signals of distress, and other equipments on board are sufficient, in good condition, and as required by Act XXI of 1883 and the rules thereunder, and that there is on board a proper, sufficient, and safe magazine for keeping the signals of distress.

(4) That I saw all the boats of the ship lowered into the water, satisfied myself that proper and sufficient means are provided for lowering them safely and expeditiously; carefully examined all the air cases in the life-boats, and ascertained the life-boats to be properly provided with efficient equipments and disengaging gear.

(5) That the distilling apparatus is in efficient working order, and is capable of producing sufficient cold water of a good quality for the number of passengers and crew the ship will carry; that the steam-cooking apparatus connected with the condenser is in good condition and safe working order, and that a person competent to properly manage and repair the apparatus is rated in the ship's articles.

(6) That the coals on board, which I have satisfied myself amount to tons, are in my judgment of good quality and sufficient for all the requirements of the voyage.

(7) That the requirements as to light and air in the between decks, and other places of accommodation, and the ventilation of cargo are complied with; that the means of ventilating the spaces occupied by coals or cargo do not open into or affect any compartment intended for the accommodation of emigrants; and, finally, that the vessel is in my opinion seaworthy, in good trim, and in all other respects fit to proceed to sea for her intended voyage with emigrants to

He should state every day the nature of the weather and the latitude and longitude, and should notice the crossing of the tropics and of the line. He should enter any noteworthy instances of the good or bad conduct of those on board, or of the working of the regulations for their discipline, and copies of any letters he may write or receive on service. At the end of the journal he should place together all his general observations on the voyage, mentioning every objection he may see reason to form to the regulations, or to the victualling, or any other part of the arrangements, and stating the remedy which he would propose.

The Surgeon Superintendent should bear in mind that this journal is a very important document, not only as concerns his charge, but himself, and should be a faithful record of the occurrences of the voyage. It should therefore be carefully kept, and all matters, which have any bearing upon his functions should be noted therein. A careful entry should be made of all complaints made to him by the emigrants, and the measures taken to remedy them; and in case any investigation be necessary, the Surgeon Superintendent should request the master of the vessel to assist him. The evidence taken and the decision arrived at should be carefully entered and signed by the witnesses, by himself and by the master of the vessel and should be read to the complainant, who should be also required to sign it as a correct record of the proceedings. The occurrences of each day should be entered before its close, while fresh in the Surgeon Superintendent's memory, and loose memoranda should never be used.

If for any sufficient reason, it becomes impossible to cook the meals, dry provisions shall be issued as provided in the scale of provisions. Patients attacked by cholera, or small-pox, or other dangerous communicable disease, shall, together with all their property, be instantly and thoroughly isolated from the other emigrants; and the family or batch in which such disease shall have occurred shall be kept on another deck, if such a deck is available, or as far apart as possible from the rest of the emigrants.

Treatment of sick emigrants.

183. Besides the immediate isolation and treatment of the first case or cases of dangerous communicable disease, every precaution shall be taken to prevent an epidemic, strict attention being paid to premonitory symptoms, general and personal cleanliness, careful disinfection and disposal of excreta, disinfection and destruction of infected articles, free ventilation and care of the healthy. Destruction of infected articles.

187. Unless contagious or infectious disease be the cause of death, the corpse of an emigrant shall not be committed to the sea until six hours after death, and under no circumstances shall any burial take place until the death has been verified by the Surgeon Superintendent, Master, and Chief Officer.

Burial of deceased emigrants.

188. A correct inventory of the goods or effects of every emigrant dying on the voyage, when not claimed by some person lawfully entitled thereto, shall be made by the Master and Surgeon Superintendent conjointly; and the Surgeon Superintendent shall enter a copy thereof in the register of deceased emigrants' property in Form No. 52, with such particulars as he may be able to collect as to the names and addresses of the nearest relatives of the deceased, the Master in every case attesting the correctness of such entry by affixing his signature in the appropriate column.

(2) The latest Commercial Code list of ships.
(3) Horsburgh's India Sailing Directory (Captain Taylor's edition).
(4) South American Pilot, Part I.

Crew of emigrant vessel.

Scale according to tonnage of the number of hands to be carried in sailing and steam-vessels.

Sailing vessels.—(a) For the first 500 tons and under, Europeans four hands, and natives six hands to every 100 tons.

(b) From 600 to 1,500 tons, Europeans two additional hands, and natives three additional hands to every additional 100 tons.

(c) From 1,500 tons upwards, Europeans and natives one additional hand to every additional 100 tons.

Steam vessels.—(a). For the first 500 tons and under, Europeans three hands, and natives five hands to every 100 tons.

(b) From 600 to 1,500 tons, Europeans one and a half additional hands, and natives two additional hands to every additional 100 tons.

(c) From 1,500 tons upwards, Europeans half an additional hand, and natives one additional hand to every additional 100 tons.

The total number of hands shall include the master and the four officers: and two-thirds of the ship's company, exclusive of the master and the four officers, shall be made up of (A. Bs.) able seamen. In case of mixed crews the number shall be in proportion.

The master and the four officers shall possess certificates of competency corresponding to their rank; or in the case of the officers, certificates of higher grade and not only of service; and shall not be natives. They shall, if a native crew be carried, be capable of issuing their orders intelligibly. In the case of steam-vessels, no steamer shall carry less than three engineers: and every steamer of one hundred nominal horse-power and upwards as per ship's register shall carry, as First Engineer, an engineer holding a first class certificate; and as Second Engineer, an engineer holding a second class certificate or a certificate of a higher grade, being in every case certificates of either competency or service, but not of inland service. In steamers of under one hundred nominal horse-power, the First Engineer shall hold a second class certificate or a certificate of a higher grade, of either competency or service, but not of inland service. The engine-room crew, exclusive of the three engineers, shall be in number not less than in the ratio of six men for every hundred nominal horse-power, if Europeans; and nine men, if natives.

Decks and deck openings.

Between-decks.—Thickness.—The between-decks shall be at least one and a half inch thick, properly laid, and thoroughly caulked and paid throughout.

Height.—The between-decks shall in no case be less in height from deck to deck than six feet, and emigrants shall not be accommodated in any lower passenger deck than the between-decks.

Iron decks.—Every vessel bound to any place west of the Cape of Good Hope, or to Fiji viâ South Australia, having iron between-decks, shall have a water-tight wooden deck properly laid over it.

Hatches.—The hatches of the between-decks shall not have gratings, but shall be solid, strong, in good condition, and well fitted. Any hatch that is not to be caulked for the voyage shall be closed, and covered with sound tarpaulins properly fastened down to the combings by means of iron bars securely locked.

Air holes.—All air holes and other apertures, likely to allow the escape of effluvia from the cargo or bilge into the between-decks, shall be effectually closed.

Pipes.—All pipes leading from the ship's water-closets, baths, or cisterns shall be ascertained by the Marine Surveyor to be perfectly sound and in good order. The pipes intended for the conveyance anywhere of sea, soiled, or waste water shall not pass through drinking water tanks; nor shall they be allowed to continue in any position in which they are likely by leaking to contaminate the purity of the drinking water, or of the air in the between-decks or other places intended for the accommodation of emigrants.

Upper deck thickness.—The upper deck of every emigrant vessel shall be properly laid, thoroughly caulked and paid throughout: and its thickness shall not be less than that given in Lloyd's rules for scantling according to the tonnage of the vessel.

Iron deck.—Every vessel with an iron upper deck shall have such deck covered with a properly laid water-tight wooden deck.

Structures.—All structures and fittings on the upper deck, such as the poop or round-house, deck-houses, galleys, water-closets, and booby-hatches, shall be strongly constructed; and if they are to be utilized for emigrants, the Marine Surveyor shall satisfy himself that they are properly built and secured, and that they conform to the regulations governing space and ventilation.

Lumber.—No lumber of any kind shall be placed on the upper deck, and all the necessary fittings, water-tanks, tubs, and spare spars shall be properly secured to the Marine Surveyor's satisfaction.

Water tanks.—The soundness, purity, and capacity of main tanks, or other fixed receptacles for water shall be examined and certified by the Marine Surveyor. Excepting after-compartments, if approved, no receptacles for water that form part of the hull of the vessel shall contain drinking water for either emigrants or crew.

Hold.

Bilges.—The purity of the bilges shall be ascertained, and they shall be disinfected, if necessary, to the satisfaction of the Marine Surveyor.

SCHEDULE B.

VENTILATION AND LIGHTING OF EMIGRANT VESSELS.

General Rules.

The requirements of this schedule shall apply to all steam and sailing vessels chartered for the conveyance of emigrants.

2. The ventilation of the between-decks shall be distinct from that of the hold.

3. All air-holes in the between-decks communicating with the hold shall be effectually closed, to prevent the escape into the between-decks of foul air from the bilge, or of steam from the cargo; and all ventilating shafts, tubes, or other openings intended to promote the ventilation of the hold, shall be fitted to act independently of those adapted to the requirements of the between-decks ventilation.

The size and situation of all ventilators for the between-decks and hold respectively shall be determined with due regard to their efficiency and the safety of the vessel by the Marine Surveyor, who shall satisfy himself that all the appliances for both natural and artificial ventilation meet the requirements of the rules, and are in good working order.

The Marine Surveyor, on determining the size and situation of the requisite ventilators, shall cause the dimensions and positions of the between-deck ventilators to be marked with chalk or paint on the under surface of the upper deck so as to afford the Medical Inspector, when holding his primary inspection, an opportunity of judging of the intended means of ventilation, and of indicating any alterations which he may deem necessary in respect thereof.

Natural ventilation of between-decks.—Besides hatchways, cowls, or air-shafts, every vessel shall be provided with properly fitted double scuttles on each side, one of glass and one of metal, fitted independently of each other to the side of the ship. These shall be placed about 14 feet apart, and as close under the upper deck as possible; and with a view to prevent emigrants tampering with them, they shall fasten, when closed, by means of square-headed screw bolts without handles, capable of being opened only with a carpenter's spanner.

Exclusive of side and sternports, and, in steamers, of openings into the engine-room, stoke-holes, coal-bunkers, collision compartments, and screw tunnel, the effective size, or sectional area of the hatch openings and of other apertures for the ventilation of emigrants' compartments taken collectively, shall be calculated at the rate of not less than 50 square inches per emigrant, and at least one-fifth of such ventilating area shall be available even in excessively bad weather, necessitating the closing of hatches.

In view of the varying conditions to be dealt with, of the importance of fresh air, and of the facilities for reducing or modifying ventilation, any existing openings in excess of the prescribed approximate requirement shall not be closed, even on other grounds, without the written authority of the Marine Surveyor.

The relative positions of ventilating tubes or shafts in emigrant vessels shall be governed by the following rules:—

(a). A pair of cowl-headed tubes, or one large central tube or air-shaft, shall be fitted as far aft as possible, and similar ventilators shall be fitted as far forward as possible; and in no case shall they be more than six feet from the extreme end or bulk-head, aft or forward respectively, so that the between-decks may be thoroughly ventilated. All other tubes or air-shafts needed for the between-decks shall, as far as practicable, be so distributed in the intervening spaces between the several hatchways as to ensure throughout an equable supply of fresh air.

(b). Inlets for fresh air shall be so placed as to avoid, as much as possible, the risk of receiving the foul air from outlets.

(c). With a view to secure for ventilators the support and protection of the solid structures of the ship, and thus render them capable of being kept open in bad weather when the hatches have to be closed, as large a proportion as possible of the required ventilation shall be secured through cowl-headed tubes and air-shafts carried up directly from the between-decks to the open air above through the poop, deck-houses, and forecastle.

Such portions of the upper deck hatchways as are not fitted with storm hatches, and can safely be utilized for ventilation, shall be kept open, but shall be protected against accidents by iron gratings admitting of the hatches being closed and their covers readily put on when necessary. The appropriate hatches and their tarpaulins shall be securely and conveniently placed near the hatchways to which they belong for immediate use when needed.

Cowl-headed tubes shall, when practicable, be preferred to air-shafts. But when cowls are largely or exclusively employed, and the decks are consequently dark, a sufficient number of deck-lights shall be fixed into the upper deck.

Every cowl-headed tube shall be fitted with an air diffuser at its lower end, and with a suitable plug for closing the deck opening in bad weather; and every air-shaft shall be provided with a sky-light cover, and a tarpaulin to be spread tent-fashion over it in wet weather, obviating the necessity for closing the sky-light cover for every passing shower.

No less than five wind-sails, each measuring fully 21 feet long, shall be provided for the exclusive use of the emigrants.

Of the cargo hold.—Exclusive of ventilation through hollow iron masts, the hold of every steam or sailing vessel shall be fitted, to the satisfaction of the Marine Surveyor, with cowl-headed ventilators, having an aggregate sectional area of not less than 4 square feet to every 1,000 tons of the vessel's register: and the mouth of every such cowl shall be protected by a convex wire netting protector, one-fourth inch mesh, against the possibility of live embers from pipes or chillams being thrown down into the hold.

The stoppage of ventilation through the masts or other ventilating openings shall be guarded against by arranging the dunnage and cargo about the outlets in such manner as to secure the continuous escape of foul air.

Ventilation.—Every sailing and steam vessel carrying emigrants to colonies west of the Cape shall be fitted with some efficient contrivance to be approved by the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants for artificially ventilating the between-decks and hold. Provided that vessels which are at the time of the publication of these rules fitted with ventilating apparatus, approved under the rules under Act VII of 1871, shall be permitted to continue running with such apparatus. In the case of a vessel that is again chartered for the conveyance of coolies, the means of natural ventilation fitted for the last voyage need not be interfered with, provided that the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants are satisfied that they continue the same and were found to be sufficient on that voyage.

SCHEDULE C.

At the time of survey the condenser shall be worked, the condensed water being delivered into a tub large enough to contain at least the quantity delivered by the condenser during the space of half an hour. This quantity shall be accurately measured by a stamped imperial gallon measure, to be furnished by the ship, and no allowance shall be made for any waste occurring from defective arrangements, that is to say, once the time has been taken as commencing the experiment, the quantity of water produced in the next half hour shall determine the efficiency of the machine.

SCHEDULE D.

FITTINGS FOR EMIGRANT VESSELS.

General Rules.

Metal fittings.

1. Whenever suitable and consistent with requirements, iron or other metal shall be employed in the construction of an emigrant ship's fittings. The water-closet seats or foot-rests, floors or troughs and their shoots, shall invariably be of metal or lined with zinc or lead, properly fastened or soldered.

Wooden fittings.

2. Where wood has to be employed as in the case of bottom boards for bunks and sleeping platforms, it shall be of sufficient thickness—at least one inch—and smoothly planed before being utilized for any purpose. The wood used in constructing the combings of booby hatches, stanchions, and other supporting frames or structures shall not be less than three inches square; and the thickness of the planking used for platforms, bunks, water-closets and other similar purposes shall not be less than one inch.

Fastenings of fittings.

3. All fittings shall be strongly put together, and all hinges, bolts, clamps, metal ventilating tubes, cowl-heads and their deck phlanges, and every other description of fittings shall be thoroughly well fastened against rough usage.

Old fittings.

4. The cast-off wooden fittings of any emigrant vessel shall on no account be employed in fitting any other emigrant vessel; nor shall the wooden fittings of a previous voyage be utilised for any succeeding voyage without the written permission of the Medical Inspector of Emigrants obtained by the master during the primary inspection of his vessel.

Fittings of the Upper Deck.

Hospital.

1. The hospital shall, in every case, be on the upper deck, and shall be fitted in a deck-house except in vessels proceeding to Fiji by the South Australian route, in which, if practicable, the forward poop cabins shall be fitted for hospital purposes. In the absence of a suitable deck-house, the hospital-house shall be built as strong, secure, and water-tight as a deck-house should be. The doors of the hospital-house shall, when practicable, be fitted aft, and accommodation shall be provided therein for two per cent. of the total number of emigrants to be carried in the vessel at the rate of 18 superficial feet per emigrant. The hospital space shall be divided by means of a bulk-head or screen, which shall be so constructed as not to interfere with ventilation, into two compartments for the separate accommodation of male and female patients, and shall be ventilated, lighted, and fitted to the satisfaction of the Medical Inspector. The bunks shall be constructed to fold out of the way when not needed, and shall be fitted with either bottom boards, or strong sacking bottoms, tightly stretched and securely fastened. In either case the bottoms shall be removeable and capable of being thoroughly cleaned, aired, and renewed if necessary during the voyage.

Dispensary.

2. A well lighted and suitably fitted dispensary shall be provided either in a deck-house, or in one of the forward poop cabins subject to the approval of the Medical Inspector. The dispensary shall be a compartment separate from the hospital or compounder's cabin, and shall be capable of holding a fitted medicine chest, a folding table, a small dispensary stove for the warming of food, &c., for patients during the night, and racks for drugs and appliances in immediate use. It shall be provided with a lock and key.

3. A store-room, sufficiently large to hold all the medical comforts (excepting wines and spirits), and a day's issue of ordinary provisions, shall be fitted in a deck-house or in one of the poop cabins, and shall be provided with lock and key.

Store-room.

4. A small compartment for the safe custody of all the spirits and wines stored for emigrant passengers and ship's use shall be provided in one of the cabins which shall be fitted with lock and key.

Spirit-room.

5. There shall be provided and fitted up in a covered space on the upper deck of every emigrant vessel an apparatus for distilling fresh from salt water (either Normandy's, Graveley's, Chaplin's, or such other, as may be approved by the Marine Surveyor) of a size calculated to yield as many gallons of distilled water in 24 hours as will be needed under scale allowance for the full number of emigrants and crew the vessel can legally carry. The apparatus shall be carefully examined and tested by the Engineer-Surveyor, who shall not give a certificate to the master until he is satisfied that all the requirements of the schedule have been complied with.

Distilling apparatus.

6. The emigrants' galley shall be provided in a deck-house and in a compartment separate from that of the ship's or crew's galley. It shall be fitted with a steam cooking apparatus approved by the Marine Surveyor; and also with an ordinary cooking range, capable of baking chuppatis for the total number of emigrants to be carried, as well as of accommodating, in the event of any accident to the steam cooking apparatus, the full number of large-size regulation boilers to be put on board. A suitable lever with chains and hooks for lifting the boilers off the fire shall also be provided.

Galley.

7. Structure.—Latrines shall be fitted in convenient positions close against the bulwarks, so that their soil shoots may lead immediately out of ports or other suitable openings, and be projected well beyond the vessel's side. They shall be well built, securely fastened to the deck and bulwarks, and made water-tight.

Latrines.

Blocks.—The latrines shall be in four separate blocks; two forward on the port and starboard side of the vessel respectively being reserved for men, and two aft on the port and starboard side respectively for women and children. Each block shall be provided with an inclined continuous metal floor or trough, as free as possible from obstructive angles, and terminating in the soil shoot with a good fall, favouring a free discharge of soil and fluids.

Compartments.—Every block shall be divided into separate private compartments, well ventilated, and lighted throughout the night by means of a safety lantern, so fitted as to distribute its light into all the compartments.

The total number of compartments shall be regulated according to the following scale:—

Number of emigrants to be carried.	Number of compartments.				Remarks.
	To be fitted on each side of deck.			Total number on both sides.
	For men in forward block.	For women and children in after block.	Total number.
For under 150	2	1	3	6	There should be three compartments on each side for any number under the first 150 emigrants, and in order to avoid crowding the decks with a larger number of closets than have been found by experience to be sufficient, such number should not be increased at a higher rate than one compartment to every additional 50 emigrants.
„ 150 and under 200	2	2	4	8
„ 200 do. 250	3	2	5	10
„ 250 do. 300	3	3	6	12
„ 300 do. 350	4	3	7	14
„ 350 do. 400	4	4	8	16
„ 400 do. 450	5	4	9	18
„ 450 do. 500	5	5	10	20
„ 500 do. 550	6	5	11	22
„ 550 do. 600	6	6	12	24
„ 600 do. 650	7	6	13	26
„ 650 do. 700	7	7	14	28

Each compartment shall measure 22 inches in breadth and 28 inches in length, and the seat in it shall be 22 inches square. A metal foot-rest and hand-rail shall be fitted on either side of each compartment. Each of the foot-rests shall be seven inches wide, and they shall be so placed as to leave between them a central opening eight inches wide, directly over the closet floor or trough below. Every compartment shall, moreover, be fitted with a strongly hinged door, capable of closing automatically, and of being bolted or buttoned outside as well as inside, and each door shall have a double knotted hand-rope or becket passed through it for a handle. The three sides of each compartment, if of wood, shall be lined with metal to the height of one foot from the foot-rests.

Cemented floor.—The portion of the upper deck occupied by the latrines shall be cemented and coal-tarred throughout.

Steps.—Should the seats of any latrine compartment be unavoidably high, a convenient step shall be provided at the entrance.

Flushing.—With a view to the latrines being freely and frequently flushed by means of a hose and force-pump from the outside, a metal funnel shall be inserted under the foot-rests at each end of every block to admit a free discharge of water over the floor or trough of the latrine below.

Platforms for vegetables.

A strongly constructed platform shall be fitted between the skids or in some other convenient place aft, and shall be of sufficient size to admit of the stowage without crushing of the stock of onions on one side and of potatoes on the other, with a passage between; and of the slinging, if necessary, of the pumpkins under it. Two tarpaulins also shall be provided, each large enough to spread over the onions and potatoes respectively so as to effectually shelter them from rain. Such other tarpaulins as may be needed for the protection of pumpkins or other vegetables in exposed places shall also be provided.

Miscellaneous requirements.

8. The following miscellaneous requirements for the upper deck shall also be provided.

Tanks.—At least one conveniently placed and properly secured iron tank, capable of holding a day's allowance of water for the total number of emigrants to be carried, and fitted with an efficient rapid filter; a locked cover for the manhole, a discharge pipe near the bottom for cleaning the tank, and at least two moderate sized taps, about one foot from the bottom and clear of sediment, with removable keys for each. Should a second tank be found necessary, it shall be similarly fitted, if not united, to the first by means of a connecting pipe about a foot from the bottom of each, admitting of its contents flowing into the first.

Sheep pens.—Sheep pens for emigrants' sheep separate from those required for the ship's sheep.

Dirt shoot.—A portable metal dirt shoot leading out of any port hole.

Bathing screen.—A canvas bathing screen for the women.

Hatchways.

Booby hatches.—The hatchways of vessels bound to places east of the Cape, and to Fiji viâ Torres Strait, shall be fitted with strong iron frames for the support of closely fitting tarpaulins capable of being rolled up out of the way in fine weather; but those of vessels bound to places west of the Cape, and to Fiji viâ South Australia shall be fitted with strongly built water tight booby hatches, fastened securely outside the hatchway combings, leaving a few inches space all round between the combings and the inner sides of the booby hatches for the fastening, when necessary, of the ordinary hatches and their tarpaulins without interfering with the booby hatches. Whenever practicable, the booby hatches shall be so constructed as to admit of the ladders leading down into the between-decks being placed fore and aft, and of their lids opening, so that the gangway may be either at the forward or after end of the hatch, whichever proves most convenient; but in any case, to avoid accidents, the open spaces under the lids opposite the gangways shall be protected by means of iron rod gratings. The lids when open shall rest against, and be capable of being securely fastened to, strong gallows fitted to each hatch; and should they be large, each lid shall be divided into two parts capable of being folded back twice.

Tent tarpaulins.—Every hatchway shall be provided with a large tarpaulin, which can be spread tent-fashion over it in wet weather. In the case of any hatchway that is fitted with a storm-hatch, and also with an adjoining grating for ventilation, the tarpaulins shall be sufficiently large to completely cover and protect from rain not merely the storm-hatch but also the grating covered ventilating portion of the open hatch.

Fittings of the between-decks.

Compartments of between-decks.

There shall be a totally separate compartment in the fore part of the between-decks for the accommodation of the single men; and the division shall be effected by means of a shifting frame with wooden or iron bars vertically placed five inches apart, or of iron netting which can be adjusted to the height and width of the between-decks, so as to form a compartment of such size as will be legally capable of accommodating the number of single men intended to be embarked. A division shall also be made in the after part of the between-decks by means of two wooden or iron bars horizontally placed two feet apart, separating the space intended for the accommodation of the number of single women to be embarked from the central space to be occupied by the married persons.

Painting of woodwork.

The sides and ceiling of the between-decks, the inner surface of the upper hatch combings, and the between decks themselves, to the extent of at least six feet from the sides all round, shall be properly painted with white zinc paint. The centre of the deck may be painted with coal-tar, or with a mixture of carbolic acid and oil, or any other suitable coating approved by the Medical Inspector.

Sleeping platforms.

Construction.—Strongly constructed sleeping platforms, 6 feet broad by 2 feet high, shall be fitted on each side, and from end to end of the between-decks, to admit of emigrants sleeping either fore-and-aft, or athwart ship, as circumstances of wind and weather may render most convenient. The sleeping platforms may be either fixed or capable of being folded back or raised up, entirely or partially, when not in use. In the latter case, they shall be so fitted as to admit of their being securely fastened, whether in use at night or put out of the way during the day.

Ladders.

9. Strong ladders, with hand rails on both sides about a foot high, and with a knotted hand rope conveniently near, shall be securely fixed at the hatchways that are not used solely for ventilation purposes, and there shall be at least one at each hatchway fore and aft, and two at the main hatchway.

Hatchway curtains.

In ships bound to the West Indies or Fiji viâ South Australia, each hatchway shall be provided with canvas curtains extending from the four sides of the lower opening of the upper deck hatchway to the combings of the lower deck hatchway; and capable of being either fastened below in order to check drafts of cold air from above, or rolled up out of the way when not required.

Lanterns.

Rack.—A rack shall be fitted aft or forward as most convenient for the storage of the total number of safety lanterns when not in use.

Hooks.—Hooks for hanging the required number of lanterns at night shall be fixed wherever necessary and at convenient distances apart.

Supports.

A strong double fore-and-aft rail of bamboo or wood shall be fastened to the central stanchions for the emigrants to hang their clothes, and support themselves by holding it when the ship rolls.

Change in the Anchorage limits of the Port of Mangalore.

IN supersession of all previous Notices to Mariners issued from this Department, notice is hereby given that the Gúrpúr, or Northern mouth of the harbour at Mangalore, is closed for traffic for sea-going vessels, owing to the bad state of the mouth and the intricacy of the channel leading into the port.

Pattimars and other small native craft may enter at high-water by the Ullal or Southern mouth, and will find good anchorage inside the sand spit near the Southern Boundary Pillar; but as the bar is very shallow, no buggalows, kotias, or other large native vessels can enter the harbour laden, nor find any shelter from North-Westers prevailing in March, April, and May. All such vessels bound for the Port of Mangalore should therefore be provided with good ground tackle for anchoring in the outer roadstead in not less than 4 fathoms of water (low water), with the lighthouse bearing between E. by N. and N.E. by E.

CALCUTTA CANALS AND TOLLY'S NULLAH.

No. 130.—The following resolution and notification, having reference to the abovenamed canals, are published in supersession of No. 120, bearing date the 23rd instant, which was published at page 284, Part I, Calcutta Gazette of the 24th idem.

READ.

Report of the Committee appointed to enquire into and report on the working and management of the Circular Canals.

Report by the Board of Revenue.

Letter from the Board of Revenue giving details of existing administrative arrangements.

Note by Chief Engineer.

RESOLUTION.

In discussing the general management of these canals the Committee reported that since 1855 the supervision of the Calcutta Canals has been directly under the Commissioner of the Nuddea or Presidency Division, and they did not consider that this has worked well. There was not, however, a concensus of opinion as to what change should be made, two of the Committee recommending that the Supervisor should be placed under the Magistrate-Collector of the 24-Pergunnahs, one member being of opinion that the canals should form a sub-division of the Eastern and Circular Canals Division under the Executive Engineer.

The question was an important one, and the opinions of the Commissioner and of the Board of Revenue were specially called for. The former upheld the proposal to place the general management under the Magistrate-Collector, while the Board of Revenue considered that the existing system should hold, or that the Supervisor should work directly under the Board. On a full consideration of all that has been urged, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that the present system fails in securing that close personal supervision which is so much needed, while nothing would be gained by a transfer to the Magistrate-Collector, that officer being quite as unable as the Commissioner of the Presidency Division to afford the necessary leisure. It has never been the practice for the Board of Revenue in its single or collective capacity to visit, inspect, and examine the working of any department. All the action they could take would be upon the submission of returns and reports, and this is not exactly the system which the necessities of the case most require. His Honor is therefore of opinion that the working of these canals should be placed under the control and direction of the Public Works Department, subject to the orders of Government in the Irrigation Department of Public Works. Accordingly the following notification is issued.

The other proposals and recommendations of the Committee will be dealt with departmentally.

NOTIFICATION.

IT is hereby notified for general information that from the 1st April next the management of the Calcutta Canals will vest in the Public Works Department, and that the regulation of the traffic and collection of tolls will be carried out for the present according to the rules in force from time to time, under the orders of the Supervisor, Mr. W. R. Cooksey, subject to the control of the Superintending Engineer of the South-Western Circle. The duties of the Executive Engineer of the Eastern and Circular Canals Division in relation to these canals will continue as heretofore; but it will be competent to the Superintending Engineer to depute that officer to examine and report upon the working of the canals as occasion may require.

The 30th March 1886.

No. 131.—Notification.—Agreeably to section VI of the Canals Act, V of 1864 (B.C.), it is hereby notified that, on and after the 1st April 1886, licenses for a period not exceeding six months will be granted on the rates mentioned below for boats plying on the Circular Canal between the locks at Dhappa and Chitpore. The number of licenses will be restricted to 20, and boats carrying such license will have free use of the canal within the locks named above—

	Rs.	A.
For boats measuring up to 150 maunds ...	5	0	per mensem.
For every additional 50 maunds above 150 maunds	2	8	ditto.

Licenses can be obtained on application to the Supervisor of the Calcutta Canals.

This cancels notification No. 122, dated 23rd instant, which was published at page 285, Part I, Calcutta Gazette of the 24th idem.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Read again—

Resolution in this Department, No. 33, dated the 4th January 1886.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor-General in Council having decided that the District and the Post Office Savings Banks should be amalgamated, and that the Post Office organisation being more widely spread and more convenient for the public than the treasury system, the District Savings Banks should be closed and their accounts transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks, it was announced in the Resolution of 4th January 1886 that the Government District Savings Banks would be closed with effect from the 1st April 1886 and their accounts transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. It is now announced that the Savings Banks at District Treasuries, which are managed by the Banks of Madras and Bombay, will be closed with effect from the 1st June 1886. Any balances in these Savings Banks on the date of closing will be transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. From the date of receipt of the present orders no new accounts should be opened in any of the Savings Banks at District Treasuries in the Presidency of Madras or Bombay. Any person wishing to open an account in any of those Banks should be directed to apply to a Post Office Savings Bank. Depositors having accounts in those Banks can, in the interval which will elapse before those Banks are closed, apply for the transfer of their accounts to some Post Office Savings Bank under the rules which are now in force for such transfers. The Accountants General, Madras and Bombay, and the Director General of the Post Office are authorised to take measures calculated to encourage voluntary transfers of the above nature.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the Resolution be communicated to the Accountants General, Madras and Bombay, and the Director General of the Post Office for information and for the issue of further necessary orders, and to the Comptroller and Auditor General for information.

Ordered also, that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

From Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner Central Provinces, No. 2445—118, dated 30th June, 1885 [Paper No. 18].

2. We have, on the advice of a leading member of the Parsi community at Bombay, proposed to extend to the scattered Parsi communities resident beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court at Bombay the same provisions for the more effectual registration of marriages as were proposed by the Bill to be conferred on the classes to whom Act III of 1872 and the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, apply.

3. By section 11, sub-section (2), we propose to enable Local Governments, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to extend the operation of the chapter respecting the registration of births and deaths to any classes of the community which may be desirous of taking advantage of the provisions of that chapter.

4. By sections 12 and 13 we have proposed to enable Local Governments in British India, and the Governor General in Council in States in India in alliance with Her Majesty, to appoint Registrars of Births and Deaths for classes of persons as well as for local areas. It will thus be practicable to appoint ministers of religion to be Registrars of Births and Deaths for their own congregations only, without imposing on them duties for which they might have neither leisure nor inclination.

5. In section 14 we have provided that every Registrar of Births and Deaths shall be deemed to be a public servant. This provision appears to us to render it unnecessary to retain section 34 of the Bill as introduced.

6. By section 19 we have provided that if a Registrar of Births and Deaths has reason to believe any notice given to him to be in any respect false he may refuse to register the birth or death until he receives an order from the District Court directing him to make the entry and prescribing the manner in which the entry is to be made.

In the same section and in section 22, sub-section (3), we have reproduced the provisions of section 7 of the Statute 37 & 38 Vic., cap. 88.

7. In sections 20 and 21 we have classified, in a modified form, the persons authorised to give notices of births and deaths.

8. We have provided in section 24 that clergymen who may become Registrars of Births and Deaths shall send certified copies of the entries in their registers direct to the Registrar General unless they are required by their ecclesiastical superiors to transmit the copies through them.

9. By section 26 we have proposed to empower the Governor General in Council to make rules authorising Registrars of Births and Deaths, on conditions and in circumstances to be specified in the rules, to register births and deaths occurring outside the local areas or classes for which they have been appointed. Events occurring in the course of journeys or in places for which Registrars of Births and Deaths have not been appointed, may by those rules be made registrable.

10. We have made fine an alternative punishment for the offence made punishable under section 27.

11. To section 36 we have added a clause enabling the Governor General in Council to make rules as to the custody of registers and records sent to the Registrar General under section 32.

12. The other amendments of the Bill are unimportant and do not call for special remark.

13. In regard to the argument which has been urged in some of the papers before us that the existing registers of certain religious bodies are admissible in evidence, we are informed that the legal value of those registers has been questioned by high authority, on the ground that they are not maintained under any special injunction of law, or in the ordinary course of business, within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

14. As regards the working of the proposed Act we understand that existing machinery will, so far as possible, be utilised, and that expenses will be defrayed from fees payable under the Act.

15. Other objections taken to the Bill are (a) that some Registrars may object to the provisions of section 16, sub-section (2), and (b) that difficulties may result from the requirement of section 22, sub-section (1), that the person giving notice of a birth or death must sign the entry in the register in the presence of the Registrar. As regards the first of these objections we observe that section 16, sub-section (2), will not apply to all Registrars, but only to those to whom the Local Government applies the sub-section. As regards the second objection the risk of difficulties arising may be diminished, if not removed, by provision being made, in the rules under clause (c) of section 36, for an enlargement under certain circumstances of the time within which notices may be given of births and deaths.

16. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows:—

S. HARVEY JAMES,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th February, 1886:—

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted on the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 1223, dated 22nd July, 1885 [Paper No. 1].

Endorsement by Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 2184, dated 21st August, 1885, and enclosure [Papers No. 9].
From Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 7268, dated 8th September, 1885 [Paper No. 10].

From Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 273 P., dated 23rd January, 1886, and enclosures [Papers No. 16].

2. The Bill as introduced has been approved by the authorities to whose criticism it was submitted. Some suggestions for the further amendment of the Act have been made; but, as the revision of the law relating to registration is understood to be under the consideration of the Government of India, we have deemed it advisable not to deal with them generally in this Bill. On one suggestion, however, we have deemed it necessary to act at once. It was that the law should declare receipts for payments of mortgage-money to be optionally, and not compulsorily, registrable. In connection with this suggestion we have considered the case reported at I. L. R. 6 All. 335, and the cases there cited, and the replies of Local Governments and High Courts to a letter addressed to them by the Government of India on the subject of those cases. The authorities to whom the letter was addressed are almost unanimously of opinion that, on grounds of convenience, receipts for payment of mortgage-money ought not to be compulsorily registrable. We concur in that opinion, and have added to the Bill a clause (section 4) excepting from the operation of clauses (b) and (c) of section 17 of the Act (i) any endorsement on a mortgage-deed acknowledging the payment of the whole or any part of the mortgage-money, whether the endorsement does or does not purport to extinguish the mortgage, and (ii) any other receipt for payment of money due under a mortgage when the receipt does not purport to extinguish the mortgage. In so framing the clause we have, as regards endorsements, followed the course recommended by the High Court at Bombay, and, as regards other receipts, the general tenor of the opinions expressed by the authorities whom the Government of India has consulted.

3. The amendments which the Bill renders it necessary to make in section 50 of the Act have been made in a separate clause (section 5).

4. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows:—

We have given our careful attention to these suggestions, but have come to the conclusion that, subject to a very few exceptions, it would not be expedient to act upon them without giving further notice to the public, and, for this reason, we have abstained from dealing with them in the present Bill. Among the sections to which our attention has been thus directed, and the propriety of amending which should, we think, be considered by the legislature on the next suitable opportunity, are section 107 (with advertence to the cases reported at I. L. R. 6 All. 26 and 11 Cal. 737), section 110 (with respect to habitual protectors or harbourers of thieves and habitual aiders in the concealment or disposal of stolen property), section 145 (with advertence to the case reported at I. L. R. 11 Cal. 418), section 9 or section 193 (with respect to the powers of Additional or Joint Sessions Judges), section 239 (with respect to the meaning of the words " in the same transaction"), section 348 (for applying the procedure of section 349 to habitual offenders forwarded to the Court of Session), and section 437 (for the purpose of reconciling the conflicting rulings as to the meaning of the words " further inquiry ").

3. We will now notice in consecutive order such sections of the Bill as appear to us to call for remark.

4. Sections 1 and 2.—There are sections of the Indian Penal Code under which transportation for shorter terms than seven years may be awarded, but we are of opinion that any sentence of transportation passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge or District Magistrate should be subject to confirmation by the Sessions Judge.

5. Section 3.—We have added this section at the instance of the Government of Bengal. It appears to us that sections 55 and 56 of the Code should apply to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay as they do to the police in the town of Madras and in the rest of British India.

6. Section 4.—The Chief Presidency Magistrate of Madras has pointed out that there is the same defect in section 514 as in section 88.

7. Section 7.—The practice of submitting final police reports through a superior officer of police depends on circumstances varying from season to season and from province to province and even from district to district, and should, in our opinion, be left to be regulated by the Local Government.

8. Section 9.—We have, on the recommendation of the Madras Government and High Court, amended section 269 of the Code so that, where an accused person is charged at the same trial with several offences of which some are and some are not triable by jury, he shall be tried by jury for such of those offences as are triable by jury, and by the Court of Session, with the aid of the jurors as assessors, for such of them as are not triable by jury.

9. Section 10.—The object of the amendment made by this section is to secure uniformity of practice with respect to the time when imprisonment in default of payment of fine is to be undergone where there are other substantive sentences of imprisonment to be undergone after the execution of the sentence to which the award of imprisonment in default of payment of fine was annexed.

10. Section 11.—There has been some misunderstanding in regard to the proposed amendment of section 401. It was originally proposed to meet a technical difficulty arising out of the case of a prisoner who had become insane after his discharge, and it appears to us that in the case of political offenders it may be useful as enabling the Government to set them at large on the understanding that, if any movement with which they were connected revives, they will, in the interests of the public safety, be re-arrested and detained until either the movement again subsides or they complete their sentences, whichever event may first occur.

11. Section 12.—We have, on the recommendation of the Bombay Government, authorised Local Governments to empower officers in charge of jails to discharge certain functions of the Inspector General of Prisons. It is often impossible for the Inspector General punctually to discharge the functions personally.

12. Section 13.—Difficulty has been caused by the specification in the Code of the rank of the police-officer who may be permitted to conduct a prosecution. Inspectors are officers of different rank in different parts of the country. We have, therefore, left it to Local Governments to prescribe the rank with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, but we have provided that an officer of police shall not be permitted to conduct the prosecution if he has taken any part in the investigation into the offence with respect to which the accused is being prosecuted.

13. Section 16.—A case which has recently occurred in the Bombay Presidency has suggested the introduction into the Code of Criminal Procedure of a section on the lines of section 292 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

14. Section 17.—This section in the Bill has been misunderstood. In Schedule II to the Code of Criminal Procedure as it now stands, the punishment for making a false charge of an offence punishable with imprisonment for a term of seven years appears as imprisonment for two years only, whereas the punishment may under the Indian Penal Code be imprisonment extending to seven years.

15. Section 21.—The object of this section is to make the provisions of section 67 of the Indian Penal Code applicable to all fines imposed under any law, and to make it clear that section 64 applies to offences punishable with imprisonment or fine as well as to offences punishable with both imprisonment and fine.

16. Section 22.—We agree with the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the High Court at Madras and the other authorities who have directed attention to section 75 of the Indian Penal Code, in considering that the alternative penalties prescribed by the section must often be either inadequate or excessive, and that a wider discretion should be given to the Courts. We have provided therefore that on repeated conviction of an offence punishable under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code the offender shall be subject to transportation for life or, in the discretion of the Court, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding ten years.

17. Section 23.—At present there is no provision of law for the punishment of a person who, knowing that a warrant has been issued by a Magistrate for the apprehension of a foreign subject under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, harbours that subject. The inconvenience resulting from the absence of such a provision has been pointed out by the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and ought in our opinion to be removed.

18. Section 24.—We have added a section suggested by the case reported at I. L. R. 12 Cal. 190.

19. Section 25.—We have proposed to re-enact in an amended form the whole of the three sections of the Prisoners' Act, 1871, relating to the removal of prisoners, instead of merely patching the existing sections.

Orders authorising the Construction of Tramways.

Application for and consent necessary to making of order.

4. (1) The Local Government may make an order authorising the construction of a tramway in a circle on application made—

(a) by the local authority of the circle with the consent of the road-authority of any road or part of a road which is to be traversed by the tramway and of which the local authority is not itself the road-authority; or

The Indian Tramways Act, 1886.

(Orders authorising the Construction of Tramways.—Sections 5-7.)

(b) by any person with the consent of the local authority of the circle, and of the road-authority of any road or part of a road which is to be traversed by the tramway and of which the local authority is not the road-authority:

Provided that, if any part of the proposed tramway is to traverse land which is not included within the limits of a municipality or of a cantonment, the Local Government shall not make the order without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

(2) A local authority shall not make an application for an order, or be deemed to consent to an application being made by any person for an order, unless the making of the application or the giving of the consent has been approved by the local authority in manner prescribed.

Consent of local or road-authority not necessary in certain cases.

5. When it is proposed to lay a tramway in two or more circles, and a local authority or road-authority having control in either or any of the circles does not consent thereto, or attaches conditions to its consent, the Local Government may, nevertheless, make an order authorising the construction of the tramway in the circle, or by the order impose on the promoter any conditions which it deems fit, if, after considering the reasons of the authority for withholding its consent or attaching the conditions thereto, it is satisfied that the construction of the tramway in the circle is expedient, or, as the case may be, that the conditions attached by the authority to its consent ought not to be imposed.

Procedure for making order.

6. (1) The Local Government on receiving an application shall consider it, and, if satisfied as to the propriety of proceeding thereon, publish in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as it deems sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of a proposed order authorising the construction of the tramway.

(2) A notice shall be published with the draft stating that any objection or suggestion which any person may desire to make with respect to the proposed order will, if submitted to the Local Government on or before a date to be specified in the notice, be received and considered.

(3) If, after considering any objections or suggestions which may have been made with respect to the draft on or before the date so specified, the Local Government is of opinion that the application should be granted, with or without addition or modification, or subject or not to any restriction or condition, it may make an order accordingly.

(4) Every order authorising the construction of a tramway shall be published in the official Gazette in English, and in the other prescribed language or languages, if any; and that publication shall be conclusive proof that the order has been made as required by this section.

Contents of order.

7. (1) An order made under section 6 shall empower the promoter therein specified to construct and maintain the tramway therein described in the manner therein provided, and shall specify the time within which the tramway shall be commenced and the time within which it shall be completed and opened for public traffic.

(2) The order may also provide, in manner consistent with this Act, for all or any of the following, among other matters, that is to say:—

(a) a period before the expiration of which the tramway shall not be commenced, and the conditions subject to which the local authority, when it is not itself the promoter, may, within that period, elect to be substituted in the place of the promoter in respect of the undertaking or of so much thereof as is within its circle; and the limits of time within which, and the terms upon which, the local authority may, after the tramway has been constructed, require the promoter to sell to it the undertaking or so much thereof as is within its circle;

(h) the application of material excavated by the promoter in the construction or maintenance of the tramway;

(n) the nature, dimensions, fittings, appliances and apparatus of the carriages to be used on the tramway, and the inspection and examination thereof by officers of the Local Government or the local authority, and the liability of the promoter or lessee, on the requisition of the Local Government, from time to time, to adopt and apply such improvements in the carriages, and in the fittings, appliances and apparatus, as the Local Government may consider necessary or desirable for the safety or convenience of the public;

(o) the traffic which may be carried on the tramway, the traffic which the promoter or lessee shall be bound to carry, and the traffic which he may refuse to carry; the tolls to be leviable by the promoter or lessee, and the periodical revision thereof by the Local Government; and the regulation of the traffic and of the levy of the tolls;

(p) the use of the tramway free of toll by the local authority, with its own carriages, for specified purposes, during specified hours, with power to the local authority to make such sidings and other works as may be necessary for communication between its premises and the tramway;

(q) the conditions subject to which the promoter may transfer the undertaking, or any part thereof, by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise; and the conditions subject to which the local authority may be the transferee

(r) the performance by the Local Government or by the local authority or road-authority of any work required by the Act or the order to be done by the promoter; and

(s) the penalty to be incurred by the promoter or lessee for failure to observe any condition or direction contained in the order, and the application of the penalty when recovered.

(3) The Local Government may, in providing in the order for the acquisition of land for the purposes of a tramway of which the promoter is not a company, direct that land may be acquired for the promoter under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, in the same manner and on the same conditions as it might be acquired for the purposes of the tramway if a company were the promoter. X of

(4) The order shall imply the condition—

(a) in the case of a tramway of which a local authority is the promoter, that a lease thereof shall be granted only in manner by this Act provided; and

(b) in the case of a tramway of which a local authority is not the promoter, that a lease thereof shall be only of the right of user

The Indian Tramways Act, 1886.

(Orders authorising the Construction of Tramways.—Construction and Maintenance of Tramways.—Traffic on Tramways.—Sections 8-14.)

and of demanding and taking the authorised tolls, and shall not confer or impose on the lessee any of the powers or duties of the promoter in respect of the construction or maintenance of the tramway.

Further order.

8. (1) The Local Government may, on the application of the promoter, revoke, amend, extend or vary the order by a further order.

(2) An application for a further order shall be made in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as an application for an order.

(3) The Local Government may, in its discretion, either grant or reject the application.

(4) If it grants the application, it shall make the further order in the same manner as an order, except that no addition to, or modification of, the rights, powers and authorities asked for in the application, or restriction or condition with respect thereto, shall be made or imposed by the further order without the consent in writing of the promoter.

Power to authorise joint work by local authorities.

9. (1) Subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act, the Local Government may, on a joint application, or on two or more separate applications, make an order empowering two or more local authorities, respectively, jointly to construct the whole, or separately to construct parts, of a tramway, and jointly or separately to own the whole or parts thereof.

(2) All the provisions of this Act which relate to the construction of tramways shall extend and apply to the construction of the whole and the separate parts of the tramway, and the form of the order may be adapted to the circumstances of the case.

Cessation of powers given by an order.

10. (1) If a promoter authorised by an order to construct a tramway—

(a) does not within the time specified in the order substantially commence the construction of the tramway, or

(b) having commenced the construction, suspends it without a reason sufficient in the opinion of the Local Government to warrant the suspension, or

(c) does not within the time specified in the order complete the tramway and open it for public traffic,

the following consequences shall ensue:—

(i) the powers given by the order to the promoter for constructing the tramway and otherwise in relation thereto shall, unless the Local Government, by special direction in writing, prolongs the time or condones the suspension, cease to be exercised except as to so much of the tramway as is then completed;

(ii) as to so much of the tramway as is then completed, the Local Government may either permit, or refuse to permit, the powers given by the order to continue;

(iii) if the Local Government refuses to permit the powers to continue, then so much of the tramway as is then completed may be dealt with, under the provisions of this Act relating to the discontinuance of tramways, as a tramway of the working whereof the discontinuance has been proved to the satisfaction of the Local Government.

(2) A notification published by the Local Government in the official Gazette to the effect that on a date specified in the notification the construction of a tramway had not been substantially commenced or a tramway had not been completed and opened for public traffic, or that the construction of a tramway had been suspended without sufficient reason, shall, for the purposes of this section, be conclusive proof of the matter stated therein.

Construction and Maintenance of Tramways.

Mode of formation of tramway.

11. A tramway shall be constructed and maintained in the manner provided by the order.

Inspection of tramway before opening.

12. A tramway, or portion or extension of, or addition to, a tramway, shall not be opened for public traffic until an engineer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government has inspected it and certified it to be fit for such traffic.

Agreement between road-authority and promoter as to repair of roadway.

13. Subject to the provisions of any order for the time being in force with respect to the matters mentioned in section 7, sub-section (2), clause (g), the road-authority and the promoter may from time to time enter into agreements as to the keeping in repair of the whole or a part of a road traversed by a tramway, and as to the proportion to be paid by either of them of the expense of keeping the road or part in repair.

Traffic on Tramways.

Rights of promoters and the public over tramways.

14. (1) The promoter of a tramway shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) and to the other provisions of this Act and of the order, have the exclusive use of the tramway for carriages with flange-wheels or other wheels suitable to run on the rail described in the order as the rail to be used on the tramway:

Provided that nothing in this Act or in the order or any rule made under this Act shall affect the right of any person authorised to use a tramway or railway to pass across a tramway constructed under this Act with carriages having wheels suitable to run on the rail thereof.

The Indian Tramways Act, 1886.

(Traffic on Tramways.—Licenses to use Tramways.—Secs. 15-18.)

(2) The public shall have a right to pass along or across any part of a road along or across which a tramway is constructed, whether on or off the tramway, with carriages not having flange-wheels or other wheels suitable to run on the rail of the tramway: Provided—

(a) that this sub-section shall not apply where the tramway is constructed on land the right to the exclusive possession of which has been acquired by the promoter; and

(b) that the Local Government may by an order authorise the construction of a tramway on any part of a road with rails raised above the surface of the road, if it is satisfied that the convenience of the public will not be injuriously affected thereby.

Tolls leviable by promoter or lessee.

15. (1) The promoter or lessee may demand and take, in respect of the tramway, tolls not exceeding the limits specified in or determinable under the order, or, if the order contains no provision in this behalf, then such sums as may from time to time be fixed by the promoter or lessee with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

(2) A list of all the tolls authorised to be levied shall be exhibited, in such languages as the District Magistrate may direct, in a conspicuous place inside and outside each of the carriages used upon the tramway.

Carriage of dangerous or offensive goods.

16. (1) A person shall not be entitled to carry or to require to be carried, on a tramway constructed under this Act, any goods of a dangerous or offensive nature.

(2) A person taking such goods with him on the tramway shall, before entering the carriage, give notice of their nature to the servant of the promoter or lessee in charge of the carriage.

(3) A person sending such goods by the tramway shall distinctly mark their nature on the outside of the package containing them, or otherwise give notice thereof in writing to the servant of the promoter or lessee with whom he leaves them for the purpose of their being sent by the tramway.

(4) Any servant of the promoter or lessee may refuse to carry upon the tramway a parcel which he suspects to contain goods of a dangerous or offensive nature, and, if any such parcel has been received for the purpose of being carried upon the tramway, may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

(5) Where a servant of the promoter or lessee refuses under sub-section (4) to carry a parcel which has been received for the purpose of being carried upon the tramway, he shall, as soon as may be, give notice of his refusal to the consignor or consignee if he refuses at a time when neither of them is present.

Licenses to use Tramways.

Grant to third parties of licenses to use tramway in certain events.

17. If, at any time after a tramway or part of a tramway has been for three years opened for public traffic in a circle, the local authority of the circle represents in writing to the Local Government that the public is deprived of the full benefit of the tramway or of the part thereof, the Local Government may, if after considering any statement which the promoter or lessee or both may desire to make, and after such further enquiry as it deems necessary, it is satisfied as to the truth of the representation, grant a license to any person to use the tramway conformably to this Act and to the order and the rules made under this Act, subject to the following provisions, namely:—

(a) the license shall be for a period not less than one year or more than three years from the date of the license, but the Local Government may in its discretion renew it;

(b) the license shall be to use the whole of the tramway for the time being opened for public traffic, or such part or parts of the tramway as the Local Government, having regard to the cause for granting the license, thinks fit;

(c) the license shall specify the number of carriages which the licensee shall run upon the tramway, the mode in which, and times at which, the carriages shall be run, the tolls to be paid to the promoter or lessee by the licensee for the use of the tramway, and the tolls, being those for the time being leviable by the promoter or lessee, which the licensee may demand and take for the use of his carriages;

(d) the licensee and his officers and servants shall permit one person, duly authorised for that purpose by the promoter or lessee, to travel free of toll in or upon each carriage of the licensee run upon the tramway for the whole or any part of a journey;

(e) any provision of this Act, or of the order or rules made under this Act, relating to the functions of a servant of a promoter or lessee shall be construed, so far as may be, as referring to a servant of the licensee; and

(f) the Local Government may revoke, alter or modify the license for any cause sufficient in its opinion to warrant the revocation, alteration or modification thereof.

Licensee to give to promoter or lessee an account of traffic.

18. A licensee shall, on demand, give to an officer or servant authorised in that behalf by the promoter or lessee an exact account in writing, signed by the licensee, of the number of passengers, or number or quantity of goods, conveyed by any and every carriage used by him on the tramway.

(Purchase of Tramways.—Section 22.)

Discontinuance of Tramways.

Cessation of powers of promoter and lessee on discontinuance of tramway.

19. If it is proved to the satisfaction of the Local Government, at any time after the opening of a tramway for public traffic, that the working of the tramway, or any part thereof, has been practically discontinued, for the space of three months, without a reason sufficient, in the opinion of the Local Government, to warrant the discontinuance, the Local Government, if it thinks fit, may, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that the powers of the promoter and of the lessee, if any, in respect of the tramway or the part thereof of which the working has been so discontinued, shall, from the date of the notification, be at an end; and thereupon the said powers shall cease and determine, except in so far as they may be purchased by a local authority in manner by this Act provided.

Powers of road-authority on cessation of powers of promoter.

20. (1) Where a notification has been published under section 19, the road-authority may, at any time after the expiration of two months from the date of the notification, remove the tramway or part of the tramway of which the working has been so discontinued, and use the materials thereof in re-instating the road.

(2) The promoter shall pay to the road-authority the cost incurred by that authority in removing the tramway or the part thereof and in re-instating the road.

(3) The cost shall be certified by an officer of the road-authority, and his certificate, countersigned by the District Magistrate, shall be conclusive proof as to the cost incurred.

(4) If the promoter does not pay the amount so certified within one month after the delivery to him of the certificate or of a copy thereof, the road-authority may, without any previous notice to the promoter and without prejudice to any other remedy which it may have for the recovery of the amount, sell and dispose of such materials of the tramway or part thereof removed as it has not used in re-instating the road, either by public auction or by private sale, and for such sum or sums, and to such person or persons, as it thinks fit, and may, out of the proceeds of the sale, pay and reimburse itself the amount of the cost aforesaid and of the expenses of the sale, and shall pay over the residue (if any) of the proceeds of the sale to the promoter.

Insolvency of Promoter.

Proceedings in case of insolvency of promoter.

21. (1) If, at any time after the opening of a tramway in a circle for public traffic, it appears to the road-authority or local authority of the circle that the promoter of the tramway is insolvent, so that he is unable to maintain the tramway, or to work it with advantage to the public, and either of those authorities makes a representation to that effect to the Local Government, the Local Government may, if after considering any statement which the promoter may desire to make, and after such further enquiry as it deems necessary, it is satisfied as to the truth of the representation, declare, by notification in the official Gazette, that the powers of the promoter shall, at the expiration of six months from the publication of the notification, be at an end; and the powers of the promoter shall cease and determine at the expiration of that period, except in so far as they may be purchased by a local authority in manner by this Act provided.

(2) Where a notification has been published under sub-section (1), the road-authority may, at any time after the expiration of six months from the date thereof, remove the tramway in the same manner, and subject to the same provisions as to the payment of the cost of the removal and to the same remedy for recovery of the cost, in every respect as in cases of removal under section 20.

Purchase of Tramways.

Future purchase of undertaking by local authority.

22. (1) Where the promoter of a tramway in a circle is not the local authority, the local authority, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may—

(a) within such limits of time as may be specified in this behalf in the order, or

(b) if a time was not specified in the order, then within six months after the expiration of a period of twenty-one years from the date of the order, and within six months after the expiration of every subsequent period of seven years, or

(c) within two months after the publication of a notification under section 19 or within six months after the publication of a notification under section 21, by notice in writing, require the promoter to sell to the local authority his undertaking or the part thereof which is within the circle of the local authority; and thereupon the promoter shall sell the same upon the terms specified in the order, or, if the terms were not specified in the order, then upon the terms of paying the then value of the undertaking or of the part thereof, exclusive of any allowance for past or future profits of the undertaking or any compensation for compulsory sale or other consideration whatsoever.

(2) A requisition shall not be made under sub-section (1) unless the making thereof has been approved by the local authority in manner prescribed.

(3) When a sale has been made under this section, all the rights, powers and authorities of the promoter in respect of the undertaking or part thereof sold, or, where a notification has been published under section 19 or section 21, all the rights, powers and authorities of the promoter previous to the publication of the notification in respect of the undertaking or part thereof sold, shall be transferred to the authority to whom the undertaking or part has been sold, and shall vest in, and may be exercised by, that authority in the same manner as if the tramway had been constructed by it under an order made under this Act.

(4) Subject to, and in accordance with, the preceding provisions of this section, two or more local authorities may jointly purchase an undertaking or so much thereof as is within their circles.

Working of Tramways owned by Local Authorities.

Lease of, or working of, tramway by local authority.

23. (1) When a local authority has under the authority of an order completed a tramway, or has under the provisions of this Act or of an order acquired possession of a tramway, it may, by a lease to be approved by the Local Government, let to any person the right of user of the tramway and of demanding and taking the authorised tolls.

(2) On the determination of a lease the local authority may from time to time let the right for such further term and on such conditions as the Local Government may approve.

(3) Every lease made under this section shall imply a condition of re-entry if at any time after the making thereof it is proved to the satisfaction of the Local Government that the lessee has practically discontinued the working of the tramway leased, or of any part thereof, for the space of one month without a reason sufficient, in the opinion of the Local Government, to warrant the discontinuance.

(4) Notice of the intention of the local authority to make a lease shall be given in manner prescribed.

(5) If the local authority cannot by means of a lease obtain what it deems to be a fair rent for the tramway, it may itself, with the previous sanction of the Local Government and for such term as the Local Government directs, place and run carriages upon the tramway, and demand and take the authorised tolls in respect of the use of the carriages.

Rules.

XIV

(2) Where the difference is—

(a) between the promoter or lessee on the one hand and the Local Government, either as such or as the road-authority, on the other, or

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to facilitate the construction and to regulate the working of Tramways was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th March, 1886 :—

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to facilitate the construction and to regulate the working of Tramways was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

2. The object of the proviso to section 4, sub-section (1), of the Bill does not appear to have been understood. In the case of lines extending beyond municipal limits, it is often difficult to say whether the line ought to be treated as a tramway or as a light railway, and the object of the proviso is to give the Government of India an opportunity of determining, with reference to particular cases or classes of cases, to which of the two categories such lines ought to be treated as belonging.

3. By section 5 we have empowered the Local Government to modify conditions sought to be imposed by a local authority with respect to the construction within its circle of part of a tramway which is to be laid in two or more circles.

4. In sections 17 and 21 we have provided for an opportunity being given to the promoter to state his case before the Local Government either grants licenses under the former section or determines the powers of the promoter under the latter section.

5. By clauses (g) and (h) of sub-section (1) of section 24 we have enabled the Local Government to make rules as to the periodical submission of statistics relating to tramways, and as to the accidents of which report is to be made.

6. By clause (e) of sub-section (2) of the same section we have empowered local authorities to make rules as to the manner in which carriages using the tramway after sunset and before sunrise are to be lighted.

7. By section 27 we have made the previous sanction of the District Magistrate a condition precedent to the institution by a private person of criminal proceedings against a promoter, lessee or licensee for breach of any provision of the Act or of any direction of an order authorizing the construction of a tramway.

8. By section 35 we have provided that, except where the parties to a difference elect to proceed under section 523 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the matter in difference between them shall be settled, on the application of either party, by a referee, and that, where the difference is between the promoter on the one hand and the local authority on the other with respect to the sum to be paid by the local authority for an undertaking which that authority has required the promoter to sell under section 22, the referee shall be the District Court. We have also provided that, in that case, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the award of the District Court.

9. To section 45 we have added a sub-section supplementary to Act XV of 1885 (an Act to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879).

10. By section 47 of the Bill we have proposed that, in places to which the Act extends, tramways of which the construction has not been authorised before the passing of the Act shall not be constructed, after the passing of the Act, otherwise than in pursuance of an order made under the Act.

11. By section 48 we have made provision for cases in which a local area comprising a tramway is excluded from the circle of one local authority and included in that of another.

12. By section 49 we have proposed so to amend section 54 of the Indian Railway Act, 1879, as to enable the Governor General in Council to apply that Act or any portion thereof to a tramway worked by any mechanical power.

13. The other amendments of the Bill are few and unimportant, and do not call for special notice.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 12th March, 1886, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. XII OF 1886.

THE PETROLEUM ACT, 1886.

CONTENTS.

An Act to regulate the importation, possession and transport of Petroleum and other fluids of a like nature.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other fluids of a like nature; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

Short title, commencement and local extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Petroleum Act, 1886; and

(2) It shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoints.

(3) The provisions of this Act relating to dangerous petroleum, and the importation of petroleum, extend to the whole of British India. The rest of this Act extends only to such local areas as the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct.

(4) Any power conferred by this Act to make rules or issue orders may be exercised at any time after the passing of this Act; but a rule or order so made or issued shall not take effect until the Act comes into force.

Repeal.

2. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Petroleum Act, 1881, shall be repealed: VIII of 1

(2) But all notifications issued, rules made, licenses granted, powers conferred and certificates given under that Act shall, so far as may be, be deemed to have been issued, made, granted, conferred and given under this Act.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "petroleum" includes also the liquids commonly known by the names of rock oil, Rangoon oil, Burma oil, kerosine, paraffine oil, mineral oil, petroline, gasoline, benzol, benzoline, benzine, and any inflammable liquid which is made from petroleum, coal, schist, shale, peat or any other bituminous substance, or from any products of petroleum; but it does not include any oil ordinarily used for lubricating purposes and having its flashing point at or above two hundred degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer:

(2) "dangerous petroleum" means petroleum having its flashing point below seventy-six degrees

The Petroleum Act, 1886.

(Dangerous Petroleum.—Sections 4-8.)

of Fahrenheit's thermometer: Provided that, when all or any of the petroleum on board a ship, or in the possession of a dealer, is declared by the master of the ship or the consignee of the cargo, or by the dealer, as the case may be, to be of one uniform quality, the petroleum shall not be deemed to be dangerous if the samples selected from the petroleum have their flashing points, on an average, at or above seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer, and if no one of those samples has its flashing point below seventy degrees of that thermometer:

(3) "import" means to bring into British India by sea or land,

and "importation" means the bringing into British India as aforesaid:

(4) "transport" means to remove from one place to another within British India: and

(5) "ship" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property.

Matters supplemental to the definitions.

4. (1) The flashing point of petroleum means the lowest temperature at which the petroleum yields a vapour which will furnish a momentary flash or flame when tested in accordance with the directions in the schedule to this Act with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by this Act within a period of five years immediately preceding the date on which the apparatus is used for the testing, and after the corrections (if any) which the certificate declares are to be applied to the results of the testing have been made.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the definitions of "import", "importation" and "transport", the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare—

(a) that petroleum imported into its territories from any part of British India, by sea or across intervening territory not being part of British India, shall, for all or any of the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be transported; and

(b) that petroleum transported into its territories from any place in British India shall, for all or any of those purposes, be deemed to be imported; and thereupon the provisions of this Act, and of the rules made under this Act, with respect to transport and import, respectively, shall apply to petroleum so imported or transported.

Dangerous Petroleum.

Dangerous petroleum in quantities exceeding forty gallons.

5. (1) No quantity of dangerous petroleum exceeding forty gallons shall be imported or transported, or kept by any one person or on the same premises, except under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a license from the Local Government granted as next hereinafter provided.

(2) Every application for such a license shall be in writing, and shall declare—

(a) the quantity of the petroleum which it is desired to import, transport or possess, as the case may be;

(b) the purpose for which the applicant believes that the petroleum will be used; and

(c) that petroleum other than dangerous petroleum cannot be used for that purpose.

(3) If the Local Government sees reason to believe that the petroleum will be used for that purpose, and that no petroleum other than dangerous petroleum can be used for the purpose, it may grant the license for the importation, transport or possession (as the case may be) of the petroleum, absolutely or subject to such conditions as it thinks fit.

Dangerous petroleum in quantities not exceeding forty gallons.

6. No quantity of dangerous petroleum equal to or less than forty gallons shall be kept or transported without a license:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply in any case when the quantity of the petroleum kept by any one person or on the same premises, or transported, does not exceed three gallons, and the petroleum is placed in separate glass, stoneware or metal vessels, each of which contains not more than a pint and is securely stopped.

Vessels containing dangerous petroleum to be labelled.

7. Dangerous petroleum—

(a) which is kept at any place after seven days from the date on which it is imported, or

(b) which is transported, or

(c) which is sold or exposed for sale, shall be contained in vessels having attached thereto a label in conspicuous characters stating the description of the petroleum, with the addition of the words "highly inflammable" and with the addition—

(d) in the case of a vessel kept, of the name and address of the consignee or owner;

(e) in the case of a vessel transported, of the name and address of the sender; and

(f) in the case of a vessel sold or exposed for sale, of the name and address of the vendor.

Petroleum generally.

Power for Local Government to make rules as to importation and refining of petroleum.

8. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the importation of petroleum, and in particular—

(a) to determine the ports at which only petroleum may be imported;

(b) to ascertain the quantity and description of any petroleum on board any ship;

(c) to determine the places at which, and the conditions on and subject to which petroleum may be discharged into boats, landed, transhipped or stored;

(d) to provide for the selection by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, and for the delivery to him, either after or before petroleum has been landed, of samples of all petroleum landed or intended to be landed;

(e) to provide, in the case of each consignment which is stated to be of one uniform quality, for the number of samples to be selected, and for the averaging of the results of the testing of those samples;

(f) to provide, where the results of the testing of the samples raise a doubt as to the uniformity of the quality of the petroleum in any such consignment, for the division of the consignment into lots, and for the

The Petroleum Act, 1886.

(Petroleum generally.—Sections 9-14.)

selection and testing of samples of each lot, and for the treatment of the lot in accordance with the results of the testing of those samples;

(g) to fix fees for the sampling and testing of petroleum; and

(h) to fix fees for the storage of petroleum unless a body of port commissioners or other like body is empowered in that behalf.

(2) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, with respect to any petroleum produced within its territories, make rules—

(a) to define the limits of the places where the petroleum is to be refined;

(b) to provide for the testing of the petroleum at or near those places; and

(c) to prevent the removal from those limits, otherwise than under the provisions of this Act applicable to dangerous petroleum, of petroleum which has not satisfied the tests prescribed by the rules.

Procedure after petroleum has been discharged or landed.

9. (1) Petroleum discharged into boats or landed in accordance with rules made under section 8, sub-section (1), shall not be removed from the boats or places in or at which it is stored until the samples selected therefrom in accordance with those rules have been tested by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf in the manner described in the schedule to this Act with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by this Act, and until the officer has given a certificate that the petroleum is not dangerous petroleum.

(2) If the officer after testing the samples refuses to give the certificate in respect of any petroleum, the Local Government may permit the consignee, within a time to be fixed by the Local Government in this behalf,—

(a) to rectify the petroleum,

(b) to apply for a license to import the petroleum as dangerous petroleum, or

(c) to re-export the petroleum.

(3) If the consignee does not within the time fixed under sub-section (2) avail himself of the permission granted under that sub-section, the petroleum may be disposed of as the Local Government directs.

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing portions of this section, the Local Government in its discretion may, where the officer has refused the certificate, direct that the petroleum be re-tested by another officer appointed by it in this behalf, and may, if that officer advises that the petroleum is not dangerous petroleum, authorise its removal from the boats or places in or at which it is stored.

Possession and transport of petroleum.

10. No quantity of petroleum exceeding five hundred gallons shall be kept by any one person or on the same premises or shall be transported except under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a license granted under this Act.

Power to make rules as to possession and transport.

11. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may make rules consistent with this Act as to the granting of licenses to possess or transport petroleum in cases where such licenses are by law required.

(2) The rules may provide for the following among other matters, that is to say:—

in the case of licenses to possess petroleum—

(a) the nature and situation of the premises for which they may be granted, and

(b) the inspection of the premises and the testing of petroleum found thereon;

in the case of licenses to transport petroleum—

(c) the manner in which the petroleum is to be packed, the mode and time of transit, and the route by which it is to be taken, and

(d) the stoppage and inspection of it during transit;

in the case of both such licenses—

(e) the authority by which the license may be granted;

(f) the fee to be charged for it;

(g) the quantity of petroleum it is to cover;

(h) the conditions which may be inserted in it;

(i) the time during which it is to continue in force; and

(j) the renewal of the license.

(3) The Governor General in Council may make rules consistent with this Act as to the granting of licenses to transport petroleum from any part of British India to any other part of British India in cases where such licenses are by law required; and those rules may provide, among other matters, for those mentioned in sub-section (2) as matters for which rules made by a Local Government with respect to licenses to transport petroleum may provide.

Power to inspect and require dealer to sell samples.

12. Any officer specially authorized by name or by virtue of his office in this behalf by the Local Government may require any dealer in petroleum to show him any place and any of the vessels in which any petroleum in his possession is stored or contained, to give him such assistance as he may require for examining the same, and to deliver to him samples of the petroleum on payment of the value of the samples.

Notice to be given when officer proposes to test samples.

13. When any such officer has, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 12, or by purchase, obtained a sample of petroleum in the possession of a dealer, he may give a notice in writing to the dealer informing him that he is about to test the sample or cause it to be tested with the apparatus and in the manner described in the schedule to this Act, at a time and place to be fixed in the notice, and that the dealer or his agent may be present at the testing.

Certificate as to result of testing.

14. On any such testing, if it appears to the officer or other person so testing that the petroleum from which the sample has been taken is or is not dangerous petroleum, the officer or other person may certify the fact; and the certificate so given shall be receivable as evidence in any proceedings which may be taken under this Act against the dealer in whose possession the petroleum was found, and shall, until the contrary is proved, be evidence of the fact stated therein; and a certified copy of the certificate shall be given free of charge to the dealer at his request.

The Petroleum Act, 1886.

THE SCHEDULE.

I.—Nature of the Test-apparatus.

The apparatus consists of the following parts :—

(1) the oil-cup ;

(2) the cover, with slide, test-lamp, and clockwork arrangement for opening and closing the holes in the cover and for dipping the test-flame ;

(3) the water-bath or heating vessel ;

(4) the tripod stand, with jacket and spirit-lamp for heating the water-bath ;

(5) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil in the oil-cup ;

(6) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the water in the water-bath ;

(7) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil before it is poured into the oil-cup ;

(8) the dropping bottle or pipette for replenishing the test-lamp ; and

(9) a barometer standardised at the Meteorological Office of the province or at any other place appointed by the Local Government.

The oil-cup is a cylindrical flat-bottomed vessel, made of gun-metal or brass, and tinned or silvered inside. A gauge is fixed to the inside of the cup to regulate the height to which it is to be filled with the sample under examination.

The cup is provided with a close fitting overlapping cover, which carries the thermometer, the test-lamp and the adjuncts thereto. The test-lamp is suspended upon two supports by means of trunnions, which allow it to be easily inclined to a particular angle and restored to its original position. The socket in the cover, which is to hold a round bulb thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil during the testing operation, is so adjusted that the bulb of the latter is always inserted in a definite position below the surface of the liquid.

The cover is provided with three holes, one in the centre and two smaller ones close to the sides. These are closed and opened by means of a pivoted slide. When the slide is moved so as to uncover the holes, the suspended lamp is caught by a projection fixed on the slide, and tilted in such a way as to bring the end of the spout just below the surface of the lid. As the slide moves back so as to cover the holes, the lamp returns to its original position. Upon the cover, in front of and in a line with the nozzle of the lamp, is fixed a white bead, the diameter of which represents the size of the test-flame to be used.

The water-bath or heating vessel is so constructed that, when the oil-cup is placed in position in it, an air-space or air-chamber intervenes between the two ; consequently, in applying the test under ordinary circumstances, the heat is transmitted gradually to the oil from the hot water through the air-space. The water-bath is fitted with a socket for receiving a long bulb thermometer, to indicate the temperature of the water. It is also provided with a funnel, an overflow-pipe and two handles.

The water-bath rests upon a tripod stand, which is fitted with a copper cylinder or jacket, so that the bath is surrounded by an enclosed air-space, which retains and regulates the heat. One of the legs of the stand serves as a support for a spirit-lamp, which is attached to it by a small swing bracket.

The clockwork arrangement, by which during the operation of testing the slide is withdrawn, and the test-flame dipped into the cup and raised again as the slide is replaced, is provided with a ratchet key for setting it in action for each test, and with a trigger for starting it each time that the test-flame is applied.

II.—Directions for drawing the Sample and preparing it for Testing.

1. Drawing the sample.—In all cases the testing officer or some person duly authorised by him shall personally superintend the drawing of the sample from an original unopened tin or other vessel.

An opening sufficiently large to admit of the oil being rapidly poured or syphoned from the tin or other vessel shall be made.

Two bottles, each of the capacity of about 40 fluid ounces, are to be filled with the oil. One of these, the contents of which is intended to be preserved for reference in case of need, is to be carefully corked, the cork being well driven home,

The Petroleum Act, 1886.

(The Schedule.)

cut off level with the neck, and melted sealing-wax worked into it. The other bottle may be either stoppered or corked.

2. Preparing the sample for testing.—About ten fluid ounces of the oil, sufficient for three tests, are transferred from the bottle into which the sample has been drawn to a pint flask or bottle, which is to be immersed in water artificially cooled until a thermometer, introduced into the oil, indicates a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit.

III.—Directions for preparing and using the Test-apparatus.

1. Preparing the water-bath.—The water-bath is filled by pouring water into the funnel until it begins to flow out at the overflow-pipe. The temperature of the water at the commencement of each test, as indicated by the long bulb thermometer, is to be 130° Fahrenheit, and this is attained in the first instance by mixing hot and cold water, either in the bath or in a vessel from which the bath is filled, until the thermometer which is provided for testing the temperature of the water gives the proper indication; or the water is heated by means of the spirit-lamp (which is attached to the stand of the apparatus) until the required temperature is indicated.

2. Preparing the test-lamp.—The test-lamp is fitted with a piece of cylindrical wick of such thickness that it fills the wick-holder, but may readily be moved to and fro for the purpose of adjusting the size of the flame. In the body of the lamp, upon the wick, which is coiled within it, is placed a small tuft of cotton wool, moistened with petroleum, any oil not absorbed by the wool being removed. When the lamp has been lighted, the wick is adjusted by means of a pair of forceps until the flame is of the size of the bead fixed on the cover of the oil-cup; should a particular test occupy so long a time that the flame begins to get smaller, through the supply of oil in the lamp becoming exhausted, three or four drops of petroleum are allowed to fall upon the tuft of wool in the lamp from the dropping bottle or pipette provided for that purpose. This can be safely done without interrupting the test.

3. Filling the oil-cup.—The oil-cup having been previously cooled, by placing it bottom downwards in water at a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit, is to be rapidly wiped dry, placed on a level surface in a good light, and the oil to be tested is poured in very slowly, without splashing, until its surface is level with the point of the gauge which is fixed in the cup. The round bulb thermometer is inserted into the lid of the cup, care being taken that the projecting rim of the collar touches the edge of the socket; the test-lamp, prepared as already described, is placed in position, and the cover is then put on to the cup and pressed down so that its edge rests on the rim of the cup.

4. Application of the test.—The water-bath, with its thermometer in position, is placed in some locality where it is not exposed to currents of air, and where the light is sufficiently subdued to admit of the size of the entire test-flame being compared with that of the bead on the cover. The cup is carefully lifted without shaking it, and placed in the bath, the test-lamp is lighted, and the clockwork wound up by turning the key. The thermometer in the oil-cup is now watched, and when the temperature has reached 56° Fahrenheit the clockwork is set in motion by pressing the trigger.

If no flash takes place the clockwork is at once re-wound, and the trigger pressed at 57° Fahrenheit, and so on, at every degree rise of temperature, until the flash occurs, or until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached.

If the flash takes place at any temperature below 77° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs is to be recorded. The fresh portions of the sample are then to be successively tested in a similar manner and the results recorded. If no greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit exists between any two of the three recorded results, each result is to be corrected for atmospheric pressure, as hereafter described, and the average of the three corrected results is the flashing point of the sample. In the event of there being a greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit between any two of the results, the series of tests is to be rejected and a fresh series, of three, similarly obtained, and so on until a sufficiently concordant series is furnished, when the results are to be corrected and the average taken in the manner already described.

No flash which takes place within eight degrees of the temperature at which the testing is commenced shall be accepted as the true flashing point of the sample tested. In the event of a flash occurring at or below 64° when the test is applied in the manner above described, the next testing shall be commenced ten degrees lower than the temperature at which the flash had been previously obtained (that is to say, at 54° or, thereunder), and this procedure shall be continued until the results of three consecutive tests do not show a greater difference than 2°.

If a temperature of 76° Fahrenheit has been reached without a flash occurring, the application of the test-flame is to be continued at every degree rise of temperature until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached. If no flash has occurred up to this point, and if the petroleum is declared to be imported subject to the provisions of the Act, the tests shall not be continued, and the testing officer shall certify that the petroleum has a flashing point over 95° and is not dangerous. But if the petroleum is oil ordinarily used for lubricating purposes and is declared to have its flashing point at or above 200° degrees, or is oil to which a notification of the Local Government exempting it from the operation of the Act will be applicable in the event of the flashing point being found to be at or above 120°, the test shall be continued as follows:—The oil-cup is to be removed from the water-bath, and the temperature of the water in the water-bath is to be reduced to 95° Fahrenheit by pouring cold water into the funnel (the hot water escaping by the overflow-pipe). The air-chamber is then to be filled to a depth of 1½ inches with water at a temperature of about 95° Fahrenheit, the oil-cup is to be replaced in the water-bath and the spirit-lamp attached to the water-bath is to be lighted and placed underneath. The test-flame is then to be again applied, from 96° Fahrenheit, at every degree rise of temperature as indicated by the thermometer in the oil-cup until a flash takes place or until a temperature of 200° Fahrenheit or 120° Fahrenheit, as the case may be, has been reached. If during this operation the test-flame appears to diminish in size, the lamp is to be replenished in the manner prescribed at (2) without interrupting the test.

The Petroleum Act, 1886.

(The Schedule.)

If a flash occurs at any temperature between 76° and 200° Fahrenheit, the temperature at which it occurs, subject to correction for atmospheric pressure, is the flashing point of the sample.

In repeating a test a fresh sample of oil must always be used, the tested sample being thrown away, and the cup must be wiped dry from any adhering oil and cooled, as already described, before receiving the fresh sample.

5. Correction for atmospheric pressure.—As the flashing point of an oil is influenced by changes in atmospheric pressure to an average extent of 1·6° Fahrenheit for every inch of the barometer, a correction of the observed flashing point may become necessary. The height of the barometer must therefore be determined at the time of making the test for the flashing point. The true height of the barometer for the purpose of the test shall be considered to be the height of the column of mercury measured at 32° Fahrenheit, which is supported by the air pressure at the time of the experiment; that is, the actual height of the barometer at the time of observation duly corrected for any error of the instrument and for its temperature if necessary. For the purpose of applying the correction to the flashing point of the oil obtained by the test, a table is appended to this schedule, giving the flashing points of oils ranging from 65° to 80° Fahrenheit, under pressure ranging from 27 to 31 inches of mercury.

The table is used in the following manner:—

Example.—An oil has given a flashing point of 71°, the barometer being at 28·6 inches; take the nearest number to 71° in the vertical column headed 28·6. This number is 70·8. Substitute for this the number in the same horizontal line in the column headed 30 (the normal height of the barometer). The substituted number, that is, the true flashing point of the oil, is 73°.

Table for correction of Flashing Points indicated by the Test for Variations in Barometric Pressure on either side of Thirty Inches.

2. On the general question of standards and the definition of dangerous petroleum, we adhere to the scheme laid down in section 3 of the Bill. But Dr. Warden and Mr. Pedler suggest that the lowest standard for lubricating oils (the attainment of which would exempt them from the operation of the Act) should be fixed at 200° instead of 250° as in the present Act. It is, they explain, practically impossible with the Abel apparatus to test up to 250°. They consider the limit of 150°, which is proposed in some of the papers, too low for this country, and believe 200° would meet all reasonable requirements. In this view we concur. We are also of opinion that Local Governments should be empowered to exempt from the operation of the Act and rules oil certified to be over 120° when imported as ordinary cargo and in limited quantities.

3. We consider that section 4 of the Bill should be omitted. Messrs. Warden and Pedler point out that the drawback of the fragility of glass for carriage is frequently more than counterbalanced by its impermeability. It is very difficult in this country to get tin or metal vessels made which shall be thoroughly impervious to highly volatile oil.

4. It is suggested by the Bombay Government and other authorities that it should be made clear that conveyance by sea from one part of British India to another is "transport" and not "import" within the meaning of the Act. We are of opinion that some discretion in the matter should be left to the Local Governments. It would be unsafe, for instance, at present to admit freely to Calcutta oil brought up from Burma. Experience has shown that in Burma refining is not yet thoroughly understood, and the local testing is not at present very trustworthy. The Local Governments in India should have power to treat such oil as foreign oil until its quality generally improves. On the other hand, there is no reason why foreign oil once properly tested should be re-tested on arrival at a second port. We have taken power for the Local Governments of territories, such as Burma and Assam, in which oil is or is likely to be produced, to appoint testing officers at or near refineries, and to prevent the removal from the refineries of oil which does not satisfy the tests otherwise than under the regulations for the control of dangeous petroleum.

5. Turning now to the question of the method of sampling cargoes, we concur with the Bombay Government and other authorities in thinking that it should be open to the Local Government by rule to provide for sampling either before or after landing; to prescribe the number of samples to be taken from a cargo or consignment or any part thereof; to provide, when the first test is unsatisfactory, or when doubt is felt as to the uniformity of quality in the cargo, for the landing and sorting of the cargo in lots, or its delivery into boats, each of a certain capacity; and for the sampling of each lot or boat-load, and its ultimate treatment in accordance with the results of the test in each case.

When a doubtful cargo has to be landed and stacked, substantial fees should be levied, as much additional work is thrown upon Government officers.

6. With reference to the objections taken by some Bombay officers to the provisions of the schedule requiring that the sample tin should be tapped in presence of the testing officer, we observe that Messrs. Warden and Pedler both attach importance to this, as all manipulation and airing of the oil tends to raise its flashing point, and the drawing of oil for testing purposes should in any case be under the control of a responsible officer of the testing department. They consider that in most cases the selection of one case from a cargo of oil certified before arrival to be ordinary petroleum is sufficient, if care is taken to get the sample from below, and thus to defeat any attempt at "facing" the cargo. The number of samples taken at Bombay appears to be unduly large, and has given rise to the objection that to convey them to the Chemical Examiner's laboratory would be an arduous task. We have so amended the Schedule, Part II, paragraph 1, as to provide that the testing officer or some person duly authorized by him shall superintend the drawing of the sample.

7. In revising the Bill we have had regard to the practice which obtains in Bombay of allowing delivery into cargo-boats pending the result of testing, and to the suggestion of the Bengal Government that the Local Government should have the power in special cases to order further tests in such manner as it may deem expedient.

8. As regards the suggestion of the Bombay Government that a second standard apparatus should be maintained at Bombay, it appears to us to be highly important to secure uniformity in the tests throughout India. To this end there should be but one absolute and ultimate standard, and this can most conveniently be maintained in Calcutta.

9. We are of opinion that the Chemical Examiner should stamp any apparatus sent to him not only with a special number but also with the date of his verification of the apparatus, and further that he should give a certificate in writing under his hand, in a form to be laid down by the Governor General in Council, to the effect that the apparatus has been compared and verified by him on a given date and been found to be correct, or correct subject to certain specified corrections to be applied to the results of tests.

10. The Chemical Examiner should also keep a register of verifications.

11. Messrs. Warden and Pedler suggest that in the Schedule, Part I, provision be made for "a barometer standardised at the Meteorological Office of the province, or at any other place appointed by the Local Government." We have accepted the suggestion.

12. With respect to the changes in the Schedule, Part III, proposed by Dr. Lyon, Messrs. Warden and Pedler are inclined to hold that Sir F. Abel has in a paper before us sufficiently met Dr. Lyon's difficulty, and they believe that in practice no difficulty is likely to arise of the kind Dr. Lyon puts forward. They have, however, suggested, and we have acted on the suggestion, that all possible objection would be removed if it were provided that no flashing point obtained should be accepted unless it be at least 8° above the temperature at which the testing commenced.

13. Messrs. Warden and Pedler are of opinion that it is unnecessary in the case of ordinary petroleum to continue the tests when no flash has been obtained up to 95° Fahrenheit. It is only in the case of petroleum for which exemption from the Act is claimed that the test need be continued in the manner laid down in the fourth paragraph of the rules for "application of the test". We have modified that paragraph accordingly.

14. In the Schedule, Part III, paragraph 5, we have pointed out that the height of the barometer must be determined at the time of making the test for the flashing point.

15. We are advised not to accept the suggestion made from Burma to adopt Hewmann's apparatus in preference to Abel's.

16. We have had regard to the remarks of the Bombay Government with reference to the repeal of the municipal laws affecting petroleum, and to giving power to Port Trusts to regulate their own fees for the storage of petroleum.

17. Having thus amended the Bill we have deemed it advisable to consolidate it and the Petroleum Act of 1881, and, in doing so, have taken the opportunity (a) to enhance the penalty for keeping, transporting, selling or exposing for sale dangerous petroleum in contravention of the Act, and (b) to empower the Governor General in Council to make rules as to the transport of petroleum from any part of British India to any other part.

18. The other alterations we have made in consolidating the Bill and the Act are few and unimportant and do not call for notice.

Prohibition of indorsements on allonges to Government securities.

6. Notwithstanding anything in section 15 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, the holder of a Government security shall not be said to indorse the security, or be called the indorser thereof, if, when he signs the same for the purpose of negotiation, he inscribes his signature for that purpose elsewhere than on the back of the security itself.

Holding of Government securities by holders for the time being of public offices.

7. (1) In the case of any public office to which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare this sub-section to apply, a Government security may be made or indorsed payable to or to the order of the holder for the time being of the office by the name of the office.

(2) When a Government security is made or indorsed as aforesaid, it shall be deemed to be transferred without any or further indorsement from each holder for the time being of the office to the succeeding holder for the time being of the office on and from the date on which the latter takes charge of the office.

(3) When the holder for the time being of the office indorses to a third party a Government security made or indorsed as aforesaid, he shall subscribe the indorsement with his name and the name of the office.

(4) A writing on a Government security now or heretofore standing in the name of the holder of a public office, whereby the security has been or was made or indorsed payable to or to the order of the holder of the office for the time being, shall not be deemed to be or to have been invalid by reason only of the payee or indorsee being the holder for the time being of a public office by the name of the office.

(5) This section applies as well to an office of which there are two or more joint holders as to an office of which there is a single holder.

Transfer and discharge of certificates and coupons.

8. (1) Whenever the Governor General in Council has issued, in respect of any loan, a certificate declaring the bearer thereof to be entitled to the portion of the loan therein expressed, or a coupon for any amount payable as interest on any portion of the loan, the title to the certificate or coupon may be transferred as if the certificate or coupon were a promissory note payable to bearer.

(2) On payment, by or on behalf of the Government, to the bearer of the certificate or coupon, of the amount expressed therein, at or after the date on which it becomes due, the Government shall be discharged as if the certificate or coupon were a promissory note payable to bearer.

Indorser of Government security not liable for amount thereof.

9. A person shall not, by reason only of his having indorsed a Government security, be liable to pay any money due, either as principal or as interest, thereunder.

Impression of signature on Government securities.

10. (1) The signature of the officer of the Government of India authorized to sign Government securities on behalf of the Government may be printed, engraved or lithographed, or impressed by such other mechanical process as the Governor General in Council may direct, on the securities.

Issue of renewed securities.

11. A person claiming to be entitled to a Government security as payable to him under an indorsement may, on satisfying the prescribed officer of the justice of his claim and paying the prescribed fee and delivering the security duly receipted to the prescribed officer, obtain from the officer a renewed security issued payable to himself.

Issue of duplicate securities.

12. (1) When a Government security is alleged to have been wholly or partly lost or destroyed, and a person claims to be the person to whom but for the loss or destruction it would be payable, he may, on application to the prescribed officer, and on producing proof to his satisfaction of the loss or destruction and of the justice of the claim, obtain from him an order for—

(a) the payment of interest in respect of the security said to be lost or destroyed pending the issue of a duplicate security; and

(b) the issue of a duplicate security payable to the applicant.

(2) An order shall not be passed under sub-section (1) until after the issue of the prescribed notification of the loss or destruction and after the expiration of the prescribed period, nor until the applicant has given the prescribed indemnity against the claims of all persons deriving title under the security lost or destroyed.

(3) A list of the securities in respect of which an order is passed under sub-section (1) shall be published in the Gazette of India at such times as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct.

Period after which the Government is released from liability in respect of original security.

13. When a renewed security has been issued under section 11, or a duplicate security has been issued under section 12, the Government shall be discharged from all liability in respect of the original security of which the renewed or duplicate security has been issued—

From Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 544, dated 1st March, 1886 [Paper No. 11].

2. We have added to the section respecting the holding of Government securities by holders for the time being of public offices two sub-sections, the one removing any doubt which may exist as to the validity of past indorsements in favour of holders for the time being of such offices, and the other declaring the section to apply not only to an office of which there is a single holder but to an office of which there are two or more joint holders.

3. We consider it desirable that the law relating to Government securities should be consolidated. We have, therefore, proposed to repeal the Indian Securities Acts of 1881 and 1885, and to embody the substance of them and of the Bill in a single enactment.

CHAPTER III.

DUTIES, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF GUARDIANS.

General.

Fiduciary relation of guardian to ward.

[Seton's Decrees, 789, and Act XIII, 1874, s. 1[illegible]]

18. (1) A guardian must act for the benefit of his ward.

(2) He cannot make any profit out of his office.

(3) With respect to the property of the ward, he stands in the position of trustee for the ward, and is responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

(4) This fiduciary relation extends to and affects purchases by a guardian of the property of his ward immediately or soon after the ward has ceased to be a minor, and generally all transactions between them while the influence of the guardian still lasts or is recent.

Minor incompetent to act.

[Act XII[illegible] 1874, s. 1[illegible]]

19. A minor is incompetent to act as guardian.

Guardian of the Person.

Duties of guardian of the person.

[Act XII[illegible] 1874, ss. 1[illegible] and 12.]

20. A guardian of the person of a ward is charged with the custody of the ward, and must look to his support, health and education, and such other matters as the law to which the ward is subject requires.

Title of guardian to custody of ward.

[Act XII[illegible] 1874, s. 1[illegible]]

21. (1) If a ward leaves the custody of his guardian, he may be compelled by order of the Court to return to that custody.

(2) But the Court may refuse to make an order for his return to the custody of the guardian if it appears—

(a) that the ward has been ill-treated by the guardian; or

(b) that the conduct of the guardian in any other respect has rendered him unfit to have the custody of the ward; or

(c) that the ward is, on reasonable grounds not inconsistent with the law to which he is subject, unwilling to return, and, having attained to years of discretion, is capable of exercising a wise choice as to the custody in which he will remain.

[Eversley Domestic Relations, 691-92.]

(3) The residence of a ward against the will of his guardian with a person who is not his guardian does not of itself terminate the guardianship.

Removal of ward from jurisdiction.

[Act XII[illegible] 1874, s. 1[illegible]]

22. (1) A guardian of the person appointed or declared by the Court shall not, without the leave of the Court by which he was appointed or declared, remove the ward from the limits of its jurisdiction, except for such temporary purposes as may be prescribed or for the purpose of placing him beyond those limits at an educational institution appointed by the Local Government administering the territories within which the Court is established as an institution to which a guardian may send a ward without the leave of the Court.

(Chapter III.—Duties, Rights and Liabilities of Guardians.—Sections 23-27.)

[Act XIII, 1874, s. 15.]

23. (1) A guardian of the property of a ward must keep that property safely.

(2) In the case of immoveable property, he must not suffer any waste, but must maintain the buildings (if any) thereon and their appurtenances out of the rents and profits of the property.

[Act XL, 1858, s. 18: Act XX, 1864, s. 18: and Act XIII, 1874, s. 16.]

24. Where a guardian of the property of a ward has been appointed or declared by the Court, he shall not, without the previous permission of the Court,—

(a) borrow for his ward; or

(b) mortgage, charge or transfer by sale, gift, exchange or otherwise any part of the immoveable property of his ward; or

(c) lease any part of that property for a term exceeding three years; or

(d) transfer any Government securities belonging to the ward, or the shares or other interest of the ward in any company; or

(e) dispose of any other part of the principal of the property of the ward:

[Cf. Act V, 1881, s. 90.]

Provided that the Court may, subject to any rules made by the High Court under this Act, exempt a guardian from the necessity of obtaining the permission of the Court under this section, either generally or in special circumstances, and as to either the whole or any specified part of the property of the ward.

[New.]

25. (1) Permission to the guardian to do any of the acts mentioned in the last foregoing section shall not be granted by the Court except in case of necessity or for an evident advantage to the ward.

Practice with respect to limitation of powers of guardian of property.

[New.]

(2) The order granting the permission shall recite the necessity or advantage, as the case may be, describe the property with respect to which the act permitted is to be done, and specify such conditions, if any, as the Court may see fit to attach to the permission; and it shall be recorded, dated and signed by the Judge of the Court with his own hand, or, when from any cause he is prevented from recording the order with his own hand, shall be taken down in writing from his dictation and be dated and signed by him.

[New.]

(3) The Court may in its discretion attach to the permission the following among other conditions, namely:—

(a) that a sale shall be made to the highest bidder by public auction, before the Court or some person specially appointed by the Court for that purpose, at a time and place to be specified by the Court, after such proclamation of the intended sale as the Court, subject to any rules made by the High Court under this Act, directs;

(b) that a lease shall not be made in consideration of a premium, or shall be made for such term of years and subject to such rents and covenants as the Court directs;

(c) that the whole or any part of the proceeds of the act permitted shall be paid into the Court by the guardian to be invested by the Court on prescribed securities or otherwise disposed of as the Court directs.

[New.]

(4) Before granting permission to a guardian to do an act mentioned in the last foregoing section the Court may cause notice of the application for the permission to be given to any relative or friend of the ward who should, in its opinion, receive notice thereof, and shall hear, and record the statement of, any person who appears in opposition to the application.

[Act XL, 1858, s. 2: Act XX, 1864, s. 1: and Act XIII, 1874, s. 20.]

26. (1) Where a guardian of the property of a ward has been appointed or declared by the Court, the Court may from time to time, by order, define, restrict or extend his powers with respect to the property of the ward in such manner and to such extent as it may consider to be for the advantage of the ward and consistent with the law to which the ward is subject.

(2) Subject to any such order and subject also to sections 17 and 24, a guardian appointed by or under a will or other instrument shall, with respect to the property of his ward, have such powers and be subject to such restrictions as are conferred or imposed on him by that instrument.

[Act II, 1882, s. 36.]

(3) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this section, a guardian of the property of a ward may do all acts which are reasonable and proper for the realization, protection or benefit of the property of the ward and are allowed by the law to which the ward is subject.

[Act II, 1882, s. 34.]

27. (1) A guardian may apply by petition to the Court for its opinion, advice or direction on any present questions respecting the management or administration of the property of his ward, other than questions not proper, in the opinion of the Court, for summary disposal.

(3) The guardian stating in good faith the facts in the petition and acting upon the opinion, advice or direction given by the Court shall be deemed, so far as regards his own responsibility, to have discharged his duty as guardian in the subject-matter of the application.

[Act XIII, 1874, s. 18.]

Obligations on, and privileges of, guardian of property.

28. Where a guardian of the property of a ward has been appointed or declared by the Court, he shall—

(a) if so required by the Court, give a bond, as nearly may be in the prescribed form, to the Judge of the Court to enure for the benefit of the Judge for the time being, with or without sureties, as may be prescribed, engaging duly to account for what he may receive in respect of the property of the ward;

[Act XL, 1858, s. 16, and Act XX, 1864, s. 16.]

(b) deliver to the Court, within six months from the date of his appointment or declaration by the Court, or within such shorter time as the Court directs, a statement of the immoveable property belonging to the ward, of the money and other moveable property which he has received on behalf of the ward up to the date of delivering the statement, and of the debts due on that date to or from the ward;

[Act XL, 1858, s. 19, and Act XX, 1864, s. 19.]

[Act XL, 1858, s. 19, and Act XX 1864, s. 19.]

31. Nothing in either of the last two foregoing sections shall be construed to deprive a ward or his legal representative of any remedy against his guardian, or the legal representative of the guardian, which, not being expressly provided in either of those sections, any other beneficiary or his legal representative would have against his trustee or the legal representative of the trustee.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Guardian and Ward is based on opinions elicited by a reference to Local Governments and High Courts on the subject of certain defects in the law relating to the guardianship of minors, and its object is to provide a law of Guardian and Ward applicable as far as possible to all classes of Her Majesty's subjects in British India.

2. Among the enactments which the Bill will supersede are Act XL of 1858 and portions of the Madras Code, relating to minors in the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras who are not European British subjects and are not under the superintendence of a Court of Wards; Act XX of 1864, relating to minors in the Presidency of Bombay who are not European British subjects; Act IX of 1861, relating to the custody and guardianship of minors who are not European British subjects; and Act XIII of 1874, relating to the guardianship of European British minors in territories beyond the jurisdiction of the chartered High Courts.

3. The Bill, which follows generally the frame of Act XIII of 1874, is drawn as applicable to all District Courts and High Courts (including the chartered High Courts) and to minors of all creeds and races. But it does not take away any of the powers at present possessed by the chartered High Courts, and it provides that, in the selection of guardians and other matters, regard shall be had to the personal law of the minor. The jurisdiction and authority of Courts of Wards are expressly saved and will not be in any way affected by the proposed law.

4. One effect of the assimilation of the law will be to do away with the rule, which obtains in the Presidencies of Bengal and Bombay, that no person shall be entitled to institute or defend any suit connected with a minor's estate of which he claims the charge until he has obtained a certificate of administration. It is proposed that suits by and against minors shall be regulated by Chapter XXXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that, in a Bill which is to be introduced to amend that Code, provision be inserted conferring, among other privileges, on a guardian who has been appointed, or whose title has been declared, under the Guardians and Wards law, a preferential right to be appointed next friend or guardian for the suit.

5. The several sections of the Bill which appear to call for remark will now be noticed in consecutive order.

6. Section 4, clause (1).—In connection with section 26, Act XL of 1858, section 30, Act XX of 1864, and section 2, Act XIII of 1874, the question arose whether the age of majority should be dealt with in the Bill. As there was no necessity to deal with it, it was considered expedient to avoid the difficulty of doing so by defining "minor," in the terms of section 11 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as a person who has not reached the age of majority according to the law to which he is subject.

7. Section 4, clause (2).—"Guardian" has been so defined as to mean any person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property, or of both his person and property. The Bill, therefore, relates to guardians generally except where it is expressed to relate to particular classes of guardians.

8. Section 6.—This section follows Act XIII of 1874, which, in recognising in certain circumstances the right of a mother to appoint a guardian, was based on the New York Civil Code. The section goes beyond section 47 of the Indian Succession Act and beyond the English law. But under the English law an appointment by a mother is not now wholly ineffectual, and is likely at no distant date to be declared to be valid except in so far as it may interfere with an appointment by the father.

9. Sections 9 and 43.—The High Court and District Court will have concurrent jurisdiction, but the High Court may refuse an application with respect to the guardianship of a minor if in its opinion the application would be disposed of more justly or conveniently by a District Court. Where the application is with respect to the guardianship of the person of a minor, it is ordinarily to be made to the Court having jurisdiction in the place where the minor resides, that being the Court which can most effectively discharge the duties incident to the appointment of a guardian to the person of the minor.

10. Section 11, sub-section (2).—The sub-section follows an order made by the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces with a view to facilitating the discharge by Collectors of their duty of ascertaining and reporting to the Court of Wards from time to time what proprietors may come within the description of disqualified landholders.

11. Section 14, sub-section (4).—The rule laid down in this sub-section is, as explained by Sir Arthur Hobhouse with respect to the corresponding section in Act XIII of 1874, based solely on grounds of convenience.

12. Section 15, sub-section (5), and section 17.—As regards a minor who is a member of an undivided Hindu family, it seems to be generally admitted that it is desirable, as a rule, to leave him to his natural guardians without interference. But such a minor has certain rights in respect of the family property, and those rights are capable of being protected by a guardian. The guardian could not assume the management of the common property, and possibly he would, owing to the constitution of the co-ownership, be debarred from taking directly even a share in the management, and be confined to a mere power of control from without and a right in the last resort to demand a partition. But even this limited authority might in some cases be of great importance.

As regards the view hitherto taken by the Courts on this subject, it has indeed been held by the High Courts at Fort William and Bombay that Acts XL of 1858 and XX of 1864 could not be applied where the minor had no rights except as a member of an undivided Hindu family (I. L. R. 5 Cal. 219 and 3 Bom. 431, and 12 Bo. H. C. Rep. 247). Some doubt has been thrown on this view by the case before the Privy Council reported in I. L. R. 8 Cal. 656 (I. L. R. 6 Bom. 595 and 8 Bom. 396); but in any case it is a view which seems to be based on the peculiar wording of those Acts, which have been construed as contemplating an actual and (perhaps) corporeal taking charge of and management of some tangible property. In other words, these cases merely decide that under the particular Acts a manager cannot be appointed for a minor member of a pure joint family, not that such a manager is a thing inconceivable or impossible (I. L. R. 7 Cal. 369).

As regards the provisions of certain enactments which allow the Court of Wards to take charge only of the estate of a minor who is a sole owner (Act IV, 1872, section 35, Act XVII, 1876, section 161, and Bengal Act IX, 1879, section 7), they are to be accounted for by the fact that these enactments were designed mainly to guard against the risk of loss of revenue from an estate being left without any competent person in charge of it. That it was not considered impossible to take charge of the interest of a minor shareholder is manifest from Madras Regulations V of 1804, section 20, and X of 1831, section 3, and from the circumstance that section 14 of Act XL of 1858 and other similar enactments provide for the Collector taking charge of the share of a co-owner who is still a minor on the estate escaping from the management of the Court of Wards owing to the other co-owners having come of age. The Courts of Wards in the North-Western Provinces (Act XIX of 1873) and Central Provinces (Act XVII of 1885) are not precluded from assuming superintendence of the interest of a disqualified person who is a co-owner in an estate with other persons who are not disqualified.

It may be gathered from the proceedings of the Legislative Council, 1854-55, pages 672 et seq., that it was the intention of the framers of Act XL of 1858 that the Civil Court should appoint guardians for minors owning shares in estates, and it would seem that it is only owing to the peculiar wording of the Act, coupled perhaps with a natural disinclination on the part of the Courts to interfere between joint-owners, that that intention has been defeated.

13. Section 18.—This section lays down certain general propositions based on the fact that guardianship is a trust, and that the relationship between guardian and ward is one uberrimæ fidei, not only while it lasts, but even after it has ceased to exist.

14. Sections 24 and 25.—These sections are based on section 18 of the Acts of 1858 and 1864 and the corresponding section of the Act of 1874, on certain provisions in the Code of Lower Canada, and on suggestions received for the amendment of the Acts of 1858 and 1864. They provide that a guardian who has been appointed, or whose title has been declared, by the Court, shall not borrow for his ward, or transfer any part of the principal of his property, without the permission of the Court, and that the Court, before granting its permission, shall satisfy itself that the transaction proposed is either necessary or for the evident advantage of the ward, and, when granting the permission, shall itself record an order setting forth the necessity or advantage and the conditions subject to which it permits the loan to be taken or the transfer to be effected (I. L. R. 5 Cal. 363 and 6 Cal. 161).

These sections will be supplemented by rules made by the High Court under section 44.

15. Section 28, clause (a), and section 29.—These provisions are suggested by the case reported at I. L. R. 5 All. 218.

16. Section 32.—The rule contained in this section follows from guardianship being a trust. Though the right of survivorship is not acknowledged in England in the case of guardians appointed by the Court of Chancery, yet in practice the survivor or survivors will be re-elected by the Court without a reference. In America there is the right of survivorship among guardians appointed by the Court of Chancery.

17. Section 33.—A testamentary guardian may be removed under this section.

18. Section 41.—The cases reported at 15 W. R. 492 and 22 W. R. 479 have suggested the specification of the orders from which an appeal shall lie.

19. Acts XL of 1858 and XX of 1864 provide, in sections 27 and 31, respectively, that nothing in those Acts shall authorise the appointment of any person other than a female as the guardian of the person of a female. The cases reported at I. L. R. 10 Cal. 15 and 11 Cal. 574, and the remarks at pages 213-14 of Sayyid Amir Ali's Personal Law of Muhammadans, seem to render the re-enactment of the provision inexpedient. Section 15 of the Bill specifies the matters by which the Court is to be guided in appointing a guardian, and one of those matters is the law to which the minor is subject.

20. The provision of Act XX of 1864, that the legal heir of a minor, or the person next in succession to his property, may not be appointed guardian of the person of the minor, has not been repeated. It is considered that the appointment of such persons should not be absolutely prohibited. This was the opinion of the Supreme Council when Act XL of 1858 was about to be enacted (Proceedings of Legislative Council, 1858, pages 576-77), and is the opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. M. Melvill.

21. If the Bill becomes law in its present form, article 10 of Schedule I of the Court-fees Act, 1870, which applies only to the Presidencies of Bengal and Bombay, will become obsolete. It has, therefore, been included in the schedule of enactments to be repealed.

22. A table is appended showing how the principal enactments scheduled for repeal have been reproduced in the Bill or otherwise dealt with.

Bidyápati and Chandidás. The history is divided into certain epochs or periods marked by the appearance of one or more writers of note and influence. The writings of the principal authors in each epoch are criticised, and the indications contained in them in regard to the character and condition of the Bengali people are touched upon. The HON. ANUNDO MOHUN BOSE.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA POLICE ACT.

THE HON. MR. REYNOLDS moved that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Calcutta Police Act, 1866, and Act II (B.C.) of 1866 be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill. He said:—The Committee have made no change of any great importance in the Bill as it was introduced into Council. My hon. friend (Moulvie Abdul Jubbar) brought to the notice of the Council at the last meeting, when this Bill was under consideration, that it might be necessary to extend its operation to the Suburban Police Act as well as to the Calcutta Act; and on enquiry it appeared, as regards section 2 of the Bill, that the hon. member was perfectly right, and that it would be necessary to make the alteration which he had proposed, and this had now been done.

The only other change which has been made in the Bill is the reduction of the term of imprisonment to eight days in section 2 and to three days in section 3, and I think that this change will commend itself to the approval of the Council.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon. Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose moved that the following section be added to the Bill:—

"4. After section 72 of the said Calcutta Police Act, the following words shall be added—If the name and address of such person be unknown to such police officer, and cannot be ascertained by him."

He said:—The matter is a simple one, and I trust the Council will see its way to readily accept it. Act IV of 1866 and Act II of 1866, both passed by the Bengal Council, relate to the police, respectively, of Calcutta and the Suburbs. Both these Acts dealt with similar subjects and were drawn on much the same lines; and both of them gave to police officers, in case of their actually seeing offences against the Act being committed, the power to arrest the persons committing such offences. But there is a very important difference in the provision which gives this power to police officers in the two Acts. In the Calcutta Police Act, section 72 runs thus—"Any police officer may arrest without a warrant any person committing in his view any of the offences described or referred to in this Act." Section 43 of Act II of 1866, which is the corresponding provision in the Suburban Police Act, reads thus—"Any police officer may arrest without a warrant any person committing in his view any offence against this Act, if the name and address of such person be unknown to such police officer and cannot be ascertained by him." The Council will thus see that there is an important safeguard existing in the Suburban Police Act, limiting to some extent—and, I believe to a desirable extent—the power of arrest given to police officers, which does not exist in the Calcutta Police Act; and I am sure the Council will agree with me that it is desirable in a matter like this that there should not be one law on this side of Circular Road and a different law on the other side of it. This view has already been fully accepted, both by the Council and by the Select Committee, with regard to another provision in the Bill. The desire to secure uniformity in matters of this description was indeed so great that the Council to some extent went out of its way; inasmuch as this Bill as it was introduced simply related to the amendment of the Calcutta Police Act, yet the reference to the Select Committee was extended on the suggestion of my hon. friend opposite (Moulvie Abdul Jubbar) so as to embrace the amendment of the Suburban Police Act also, and thus make the law in the Suburbs similar to the law as it was proposed to be amended in Calcutta. I hope this will be sufficient to induce the Council to accept my amendment. But if it is necessary for me to go further, I venture to submit that, independently of reasons derived from a desire for uniformity, and independently of the weight to be attached to this amendment from the fact of these words being already in the Suburban Police Act, discussing the amendment purely on its merits, I think it will be considered desirable to safeguard, I won't say the arbitrary, but certainly the very extensive, powers of arrest possessed by a common police constable in the streets of Calcutta by some such provision as I have embodied in my amendment. I would ask the hon. members for a moment to consider what is the object of section 72 of the Act. I think they will have no hesitation in agreeing with me that the object is not that any person who is rightly, or it may be wrongly, supposed in the streets of Calcutta to have committed an offence against the provisions of the Act—and they are all petty offences punishable mostly with fines—should be needlessly subjected to the indignity of being arrested and taken to a police station, and there kept in the lock-up or discharged at the discretion of the officer in charge; but that the real object is to secure that the person who is supposed to have committed an offence should be found when proceedings are taken before the Magistrate. That being so, I submit that a safeguard such as I have proposed is open to no objection, but is on the other hand very necessary and desirable. To give an illustration or two of my meaning. Suppose the Hon. Mover of the Bill were to return home after dark from a meeting of the Municipal Commissioners in the Town Hall, and his coachman had forgotten to provide himself with lamps, under this Act as it has been drafted the hon. member would be liable to be arrested and taken to a police station. I do not believe for a moment that this would happen in the case of the hon. member; but if a police officer were to exercise the power of arrest vested in him by the Act, he would be strictly within his legal right. I might easily suppose various offences of this kind in respect of which, if only a constable chose to do so, he would be acting within his legal power in subjecting respectable members of the community to the indignity of arrest. I fancy the reason why there has not been an outcry in respect of this matter is because the police have not availed themselves more largely than they have of this power. I am aware of a case in which a lady, whose husband is a well-known gentleman, was taken in her carriage to a police station simply because her coachman had not provided himself with a light. I may just mention that I am not responsible for the exact wording of the amendment. I am not sure that the words of the amendment are the very best in which the idea could be embodied, but I thought the safest and the most respectful course was to adopt the language which had already received the sanction of the Legislature in section 43 of the Suburban Police Act, rather than to accept the responsibility of expressing it in my own language. I mention this because it has been suggested to me by a very high authority on the subject, namely, the hon. member who is at the head of the police in Calcutta, that it would be better to leave out the words "and cannot be ascertained by him," as the retention of those words might imply that the police officer would be bound to go up and down the town in order to ascertain the name and address of the person whom he had arrested. But I do not understand the words of the Suburban Police Act in that sense, nor, so far as I am aware, have they ever been interpreted in that sense. I understand they mean "and cannot be ascertained by him" then and there, and that the result of such enquiry must be accepted. If the Council think any slight modification desirable, so as to prevent the words of the amendment being interpreted in any other way, I shall have no objection to adopt it, but it seems very necessary and very desirable that a clause of this kind should be inserted in order, legally and under the sanction of the Legislature, to prevent the possibility of the power of arrest being abused. I would suggest that perhaps the addition of the words "at the time" would obviate the possibility of an interpretation of the kind to which I have already referred. With these words, I would beg to recommend the acceptance of my amendment by the Council.

The Hon. Moulvie Abdul Jubbar said:—I second the proposal of the hon. member. I don't think it is necessary to arrest gentlemen who are known to a police officer, or whose address may be ascertained. Besides, all anomalies between the Suburban and the Calcutta Acts ought to be removed, and this is one of the anomalies which at present exists.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds said:—I think I must leave it to my hon. friend Mr. Harrison to say whether he, as head of the police in Calcutta, is prepared to accept the amendment proposed by the hon. member. It is an amendment which does not seem to me to be very desirable, and there is one consideration which I should like to put before the Hon. Mover of the amendment and the Council. The hon. member has justly remarked that the Calcutta and Suburban Police Acts deal with similar subjects, are drawn on similar lines, and were passed in the same session of the Council. But I have to observe that the Suburban Police Act was passed before the other Act, and I think that when we find that where in one Act one form of words was adopted, and that the Legislature very shortly afterwards, when dealing with a parallel subject, adopted a different form of words, we must suppose that they had some good reason for doing so. I have looked through the discussions of the Council, and I have found nothing to indicate why the change was made. But I think we are justified in assuming that the alteration was not made without some sufficient ground. I think that in a Bill of this kind, which is directed to the amendment of a particular section of an Act, which has been shown in practice to work imperfectly, and to require correction in dealing with such a section, it is undesirable to raise the abstract question of assimilating the procedure of the two Acts in respect of an entirely different matter in which the law, as it stands, has not been found in practice to be the subject of complaint, or the cause of any oppression.

The Hon. Mr. Harrison said:—As far as I am concerned, I do not think there is any objection to the spirit of the amendment. For, as a matter of fact, departmental orders have been issued to the police in Calcutta to the effect that they are not to arrest for minor offences of this kind persons who are known to them. And the very fact that the amendment was moved, not on the ground of practical inconvenience which has drawn public attention to the hardship of the present section, but on the ground of unifying the two Acts is, I think, sufficient to show that, so far as practical experience goes, there is nothing to necessitate an amendment of the section, as possibly there would be if the police had abused their powers. My objection goes entirely to the last words of the amendment, "and cannot be ascertained by him" As the hon. member pointed out, these words may be so interpreted as greatly to embarrass the police in the execution of their duty. I would like to leave out those words altogether, because even with the proposed addition of the words "at the time" they are still vague and embarrassing. For what steps must a police officer be obliged to take at the time? Suppose a person said—"I live quarter of a mile off, and if you come with me you will find that the address which I have given you is a correct one. Is the police bound to leave his beat and go to the address named? I have been very careful to enquire, and I could not find one single instance where there had been complaint, though the hon. member mentioned one instance of a lady being taken to the thana. Still further, practically, there is no difference in procedure between the suburbs and the town. The same police force virtually exists in both Calcutta and the Suburbs, the same officers are at the head of the police, the Inspectors of the one force are frequently transferred to the other, as also the minor officers, although perhaps to a less extent. Can it be said that the words to which I have referred improve the section? On the contrary, they leave room for considerable misunderstanding; and evidently there is great difference between the moral effect of a section which exists in the Suburban Act, but has attracted no notice, and the same section when formally introduced into the town and attention to it thus drawn. Probably no long time would elapse before we should have complaints as to whether the police was justified in arresting a person on the spot. The police of the town are only a limited number, there being something like 170 beats in the whole town during the day-time, and if constables were taken off their beats to make enquiries regarding addresses, the beat will be left without any constable; therefore, for the efficiency of the force, it is extremely desirable that they should be in a position to act promptly, and not be required to make any enquiries. In the English Acts the general rule is that the offender is taken to the police station, unless he is known to the arresting officer. In that country there is nothing which puts on the police the burden of ascertaining the name and address of the person arrested, if not known. So far as argument for uniformity goes, I would refer to the general Mofussil Police Act, V of 1861, section 34, which provides that any police officer may take into custody without a warrant any person who, within his view, commits certain offences. Consequently at present, in the Police Act of the mofussil that power is given. At the same time, I wish it to be understood that I do not raise any objection to the provision being inserted in the law, provided the wording is so safeguarded that the police cannot be held liable to institute particular enquiries before arresting persons committing offences of the kind under discussion, whose names and addresses are not known to them.

THE HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said: If the trial for the murder of Mr. Justice Norman be referred to, I believe it will be found that the constable posted at the Town Hall swore that he did not know who the Chief Justice was. I am inclined to think that constables in this country have not the eyes, ears, and intelligence possessed by constables in England. I am therefore against adopting the general rule referred to by Mr. Harrison in the English Acts. I would let the section stand as proposed to be amended, adding, if necessary, the words "at the time" or "then and there."

THE HON. JOY PROKASH LALL supported the amendment. He thought the amendment, safeguarded the words proposed to be added by, was very necessary to prevent the unnecessary arrest of respectable and perhaps well-known persons.

The HON. MR. ANUNDO MOHUN BOSE said.—Practically, I understand there exists considerable agreement between the hon. member opposite (Mr. Harrison) and myself. But there are certain arguments which have been pressed by him against the adoption of the amendment. One argument was to this effect, that no practical inconvenience has been experienced owing to the difference of language at present existing in the corresponding sections of the Calcutta and Suburban Police Acts. I have already referred to one instance, and I may privately give the name of the gentleman, who is well-known to the hon member, whose wife was subjected to the indignity of being taken to the police station when the slightest enquiry would have satisfied the police officer that there was no necessity to take a step of that kind. I am aware that, under departmental rules, this large power given by law is attempted to be practically curtailed, but in spite of that abuses of this kind do occur; and in the second place, I would urge that the Legislature ought, by its own action and under its own authority, to remove any defective wording found in its Acts, instead of leaving the remedy to be provided by departmental orders. Then, reference has been made to the fact that the number of the police being limited, if we take the police officer from his beat to make such enquiries, the beat will be left without a constable. I submit that the words "and cannot be ascertained by him at the time" would be sufficient to prevent the inconvenience just referred to, because the constable would only have then and there to ascertain who the person is whom he had arrested. And we have the opinion of the highest legal authority to assure us that no other interpretation would attach to the words, and I have only to repeat that if these words are omitted, the police officer has simply to say "I don't know you," and the object of the amendment would be defeated; and there are many police officers to whom even your Honor is not perhaps personally known. Under these circumstances, I submit that the amendment, with the addition of the words "at the time" will be enough to meet the requirements of the case, and at the same time to prevent the possibility of any practical inconvenience in the working of the department. This Bill gives to the police extensive powers of arrest. As reference has been made to the mofussil, I may point out that under the Penal Code, if a man were to forge a valuable security, an offence punishable with transportation for life, even in such a case a police officer cannot arrest the offender, but he would have to take out a warrant from the Magistrate for that purpose. The Legislature thought it necessary to protect the liberty of person enjoyed by the subject in that way. Under these circumstances, I submit that the power of arrest ought to be safeguarded and restricted in the way propose.

AMENDMENT OF THE VILLAGE CHOWKIDARI ACT.

The HON. MR. GARRETT presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village Watchmen.

His Honor the President stated that the report of the Select Committee would be taken into consideration at the next meeting of the Council in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill.

AMENDMENT OF THE VACCINATION ACT.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the "Bengal Vaccination Act, V of 1880," and gave notice that he would move that it be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill at the next Meeting of the Council.

STEAM-BOILERS AND PRIME-MOVERS.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds moved that the Hon. Messrs. Harrison and Cruickshank be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Bengal Act III of 1879 (Steam-Boilers and Prime-Movers).

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 27th March 1886.

STUDY OF MEDICINE BY WOMEN IN THE CALCUTTA MEDICAL COLLEGE.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Calcutta, the 6th March 1886.

RESOLUTION.

RE-READ—

Resolution by the Government of Bengal, dated the 30th December 1884, in which the Lieutenant-Governor accepted the donation of Rs. 1,50,000 made by the Maharani Sarnamayi of Cossimbazar for the promotion of medical education of women.

Letter No. 160, dated 20th March 1885, from the Government of Bengal, addressed to the Director of Public Instruction.

Read

Letters, dated 16th and 29th January 1886, from Sir Walter E. deSouza.

Letter No. 357, dated 19th January 1886, from the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

Letter No. 85, dated the 5th February 1886, from the Government of Bengal, to the Director of Public Instruction.

Letters Nos. 1084 and 1092, dated 16th February 1886, and enclosures, from the Director of Public Instruction.

It was decided by the Lieutenant-Governor in 1883 that women should be admitted to the classes in the Calcutta Medical College on the same footing as male students are admitted. In 1885 a further step was taken towards facilitating the acquisition by women of knowledge of medicine. The Maharani Sarnamayi, C.I., by her munificent donation of one-and-a-half lakhs of rupees for building a hostel for female medical students, had removed a great obstacle in the way of females studying medicine in Calcutta. In connection with this hostel the Director of Public Instruction submitted a scheme for the establishment of two medical classes—one in connection with the Medical College, and the other in connection with the Eden Hospital—for the instruction of females who, while not desirous of proceeding for a degree in medicine or midwifery at the University, might wish to obtain a certificate of competency to practise medicine or midwifery. These proposals were sanctioned by Government in March 1885, the condition being imposed that females desirous of studying at the Medical College should have passed the University Entrance examination.

The portion of the scheme sanctioned last year, which provided for the education and training of midwives at the Eden Hospital, promises well; but no females have yet joined the classes at the Medical College, except the three ladies who are studying for the degree of medicine. There is reason for believing that the want of success in this portion of last year's scheme is due to insistance on the condition that a student must have passed the Entrance examination as an essential preliminary to admission to the class. It has been represented that many women would gladly join these classes if relieved of the condition of passing the University Entrance examination. They are willing to pass any reasonable Matriculation test, but both their age and their tastes often prevent them from presenting themselves for the Entrance examination among candidates who, as a rule, are quite young. The Lieutenant-Governor's attention has also been called to the fact that, in Madras, entrance to similar medical classes depends, not on an University Entrance qualification, but on a Matriculation examination held expressly for the purpose of testing the educational acquirements of females desirous of prosecuting medical studies.

The Lieutenant-Governor has now obtained the opinions of the Director of Public Instruction and of the Principal and Council of the Calcutta Medical College on the question of permitting female students to qualify themselves for admission to the classes of the Medical College by passing a special Matriculation examination. These gentlemen agree in recommending that a special Matriculation examination should be held periodically, on passing which female students should be admitted to the medical classes. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts this recommendation; and considering that this preliminary examination can be best conducted by the Department of Education, desires that the Director of Public Instruction will arrange for the periodical holding of such an examination. He approves the adoption for it of the standard in force for admission of female students to the Madras Medical College, with an amendment proposed by Mr. Tawney, by which "a practical paper in grammar and composition" will take the place of the paper "on grammar and composition" of the Madras Rules. A copy of the amended rules is appended to this Resolution. It is to be understood that a candidate for admission to the Medical College can also qualify by passing the University Entrance examination.

The Principal and Council of the Calcutta Medical College have recommended that the special preliminary examination now prescribed shall be superseded by the Entrance Examination of the University after a term of three years. This suggestion the Lieutenant-Governor will reserve for future conderation.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. P. MACDONNELL,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Rules for admission of female students to the classes of the Calcutta Medical College.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, d drizzling rain, t thunder, p passing temporary showers, < lightning, dust-storm, dew.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the [illegible] period for the past ten years. The variations are negative when the mean for the week is less than the corresponding normal mean, and positive when greater. [illegible] humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast [illegible] by 10. The number denoting cloud amount represents the part of the sky covered, the whole sky being denoted by 10. Under the head "District observations" the numerical averages of the rainfall returns received [illegible] during the past 12 years. The means of the "district" are the [illegible] stations for the period in question [illegible]

INCREASE.

	Tons.
Edible grain	119
This increase is due to fair crop in this year.
Sundries	60
This increase is due to export of onions and hide to Calcutta.
Coal	144

This increase is due to merchants not laying in stock during the rainy season as they used to do before; also to extensive brick-burning for repairs of buildings damaged by earthquake.

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

The total traffic lifted during the month under review stands at 32,362·33 tons against 18,841·83 tons carried during the corresponding period of 1885, the net increase being 13,520·50 tons or 71·75 per cent. It is satisfactory to note that there has been an increase in 9 out of the 13 heads into which the total traffic of the line is divided, the falling off being only under 4 heads, viz., Railway materials, seed, tea and tobacco.

Increases.

Ale ... ... ·66 tons.
This increase is not worth noticing.

Food-grain ... ... 10,881·38 tons.
This satisfactory result is due to a large traffic having been done in rice and paddy. During the corresponding period of 1885, 2,954·84 tons went forward, whereas the traffic in the present month amounted to 13,836·22, the result being an improvement of 368 per cent.

Ginger ... ... 128·18 tons.
Due to a good crop and fair demand.

Gunny-bags ... ... 135·91 tons.
The increase is mainly due to an increased traffic in paddy and rice.

Jute ... ... 2,500·72 tons.
In spite of a falling market at the port, the total weight of the staple that has passed over the line during the month stands at 8,459·16 tons, the net result being an increase of 41 per cent. compared with the corresponding period of 1885.

Miscellaneous ... ... 428·52 tons.
The total weight lifted under this head during the month stands at 3,405·91 tons, or an increase of 14 per cent. over the traffic carried in January 1885.

Piece-goods ... ... 1·50 tons.
The increase is small and needs no explanation.

Salt ... ... 3·14 tons.
The increase is small and needs no explanation.

Sugar ... ... 3·12 tons.
The increase is small and needs no explanation.

Decreases.

Railway materials ... ... 304·63 tons.
The decrease is mainly due to less coal having been carried for the Locomotive Department than during the corresponding period of last year.

Seed ... ... 163·73 tons.
The market is quiet and very limited business is doing.

Tea ... ... 4·15 tons.
Small fluctuation.

Tobacco ... ... 90·12 tons.
Despatches to Burmah have been held off by native traders owing to the unsettled state of that country.
